INTRODUCTION.

The towns of Exeter and Hampton, which except Dover and Portsmouth are the oldest in this State, are places of the greatest historical interest, and they present to the historian, and all interested in the development of New Hampshire, a wide field of research, and a wealth of source material.

To this section, then an almost unbroken wilderness, which had been obtained by purchase from the Indians, there came more than two and a half centuries ago, a little band of refugees under their leader and pastor, the noted clergyman Wheelwright, that they might be free from religious intolerance and establish homes in a new and undeveloped country. They began the little settlement round the Squamscott river and made the beginning of the town of Exeter.

At about this time too, another band of pioneers, under the leadership of the aged Rev. Stephen Bachiler, began the settlement of Exeter's sister town, Hampton.

The history of the years of toil and endeavor with their dangers and privations, and their failures and achievements, is one which if adequately treated would require a vast amount of space. It has been done by several historiaans in a creditable way, and the ground has been ably covered. It is not, therefore, the purpose of this register to give to the people of Exeter and Hampton an entirely new and minutely comprehensive account of these towns and their many years of history, but to condense the salient and most important events and facts into compact and easily accessible space, that the history and register of the families of the towns completed to the present year may serve the purpose of a ready-reference "Register" of Exeter and Hampton.

We wish to acknowledge our indebtedness for data to the histories published a number of years ago by the late Governor Bell of Exeter, and the late Deacon Dow of Hampton, to the "History of New England," the town records, church records, directories, and all other sources of information from which these facts have been derived, and we wish also to thank all those who so kindly aided in procuring them. We take this opportunity, also, to thank the business and professional men of these towns for their assistance, and all the families who showed their interest in the work, and hope that they will find the Register something which is of interest and value.

INDIAN ACCOUNT.

The native tribes of New Hampshire were probably all of the Abnaki nation, but seem to have been independent of the tribes who lived in what is now the State of Maine, and to have had a separate government. In the eastern part of the State were the Pequaquaukes, or Pequakets, who inhabited a part of Maine; the Ossipees, the Minnecometts, the Piscataquas and the Squamscotts. The population of these tribes is not definitely known, indeed there is no certainty that any estimate of their numbers was ever made by any reliable authority. The population however was small, and the tribes were scattered; here and there, in some place which possessed natural attractions, or abounded in game or fish, might be found a little village, perhaps, of a few hundred inhabitants, but there was no settlement of a large size.

The falls of the Squamscott, round which the town of Exeter later grew up, and the waters of the river were a favorite haunt of the Indians, who knew the Squamscott as an excellent fishing place. At the time of Exeter's settlement by Wheelwright and his party the Squamscott Indians were in possession of this and all the surrounding region, under the leadership of their Sagamore Wehanownowit, who deeded the section which embraced Exeter to Wheelwright.

These Indians were few in number, and were peaceably disposed to the white settlers, and less savage in character than most of the Indians of other tribes. They emigrated from New Hampshire about 1672, and settled on the Hudson river near Troy, New York.

Prior to 1675, the settlers here had, for the most part, lived on peaceful terms with the Indians, but during that year King Philip's War broke out, and Exeter and Hampton, being frontier towns, suffered greatly while hostilities were going on. In September, 1675, a band of Indians descended upon the settlement of Oyster River, adjoining Exeter on the north, burned two houses, and killed four persons. They took two captives, one of whom was "a young man from about Exeter," who soon after escaped. Four of this party of Indians came to Exeter and took prisoner Charles Rundlet, who succeeded in making his escape. Three of the same quartet attacked John Robinson and his son from ambush, on the road leading to Hampton, and shot the elder Robinson dead. The son fled, and reached Hampton safely several hours later. John Folsom, too, was fired upon by the same Indians but escaped uninjured.

In October following this raid, the Indians made a descent upon Exeter, and slew one or two men in this vicinity. The war ended the following year, and hostilities ceased until nearly fifteen years later, when the Indians again went upon the war-path, and as usual the brunt of the attacks fell upon the frontier settlements in New Hampshire and Maine. The terrible massacre at Cochecho (Dover) took place in 1689, and in 1690 these towns were again the scene of Indian depredation. From that time until 1710, the settlers of Exeter had to confine themselves to the three garrisons in town, cultivating their fields and performing their daily tasks in constant fear of lurking savages. During the forty years of this terrible warfare with the Indians, with their untold suffering and horrors, between thirty and forty of the settlers in Exeter were killed or taken captive, among the slain being Ephraim Folsom, Sr., Goodman Robinson, and the famous Colonel Winthrop Hilton.

The last Indian raid upon Exeter was during "Lovewell's War," on the twenty-ninth of August, 1723, when eighteen Indians attacked the house of Aaron Rollins, who, with his wife, a son and two daughters, had neglected, as was the custom at night, to take refuge in the garrison house. They resisted determinedly, but Rollins and one of his daughters were slain, and his wife, the son and the surviving daughter were carried as captives to Canada.

Like Exeter, during the Indian wars, Hampton too suffered some attacks of the Indians, and although the customary precautions were taken for protection, a number of the inhabitants were slain by the savages. Among these may be mentioned Capt. Samuel Sherbourne and James Dolloff, who were killed near Casco Bay, Me., August 4, 1691. Jonathan Green, Nicholas Bond, Thomas Lancaster, the Widow Hussey, and a boy named Huckley, were killed in Hampton in August, 1703; and Benjamin Fifield was killed near his house in August, 1706. The expedition under Capt. Swett, which met with so disastrous a repulse at an Indian settlement near Ticonic Falls on the Kennebec, was organized in Hampton and started from the town. Captain Swett was among those who lost their lives.

Amid all this bloodshed and suffering, and the constant dread on the part of the settlers of unexpected attacks by the Indians, it is not strange that the settlements did not grow rapidly, that Hampton for many years was only a little community and that Exeter at the close of the first century of its existence had but twenty qualified voters within its limits.

HISTORY OF EXETER.

GENERAL DESCRIPTION.

Exeter, the shire town of the County of Rockingham, New Hampshire, is bounded on the southeast by Hampton and Hampton Falls, on the south by Kensington and East Kingston, on the west by Brentwood, on the north by Newfields and on the east by the town of Stratham. It is located on the Western Division of the Boston and Maine Railroad, and has electric car service to Porsmouth, Amesbury, Haverhill, Hampton and the connections at those points.

The soil of the township is on the average productive, and many of the inhabitants are engaged in the pursuits of agriculture. The town is situated on the banks of the Squamscott river, in a desirable and pleasant location. The river is navigable for small vessels only, but the falls which separate the fresh from the tide water furnish valuable water power for the manufacturing industries which have made Exeter an industrial as well as an agricultural community, and to which principally she owes her prosperity and growth.

The village of Exeter, almost a city, with its splendid Phillips Exeter Academy, the Robinson Female Seminary and excellent lower schools, its handsome public buildings and beautiful residences, and with its broad, well-kept streets and avenues lined with beautiful trees, is one which appeals to every lover of civic beauty, for it is one of the most delightful in the State. The population of Exeter in 1900 was 4,922.

EARLY PROPRIETARY AND SETTLEMENT.

On the third day of April, 1638, the Rev. John Wheelwright purchased of the Indians a tract of land thirty miles in extent, reaching from the northern boundary of the Massachusetts Bay on the south, to the Piscataqua patents on the east, and to Oyster river on the north, and on the 4th of July, the same year, the first settlers arrived within the boundaries of the town of Exeter, named doubtless for Exeter in England. Tradition has it that even prior to the coming of Wheelwright and his followers there were several settlers in the vicinity of the falls of the Squamscott; Edward Hilton, who had a holding in what is now South Newmarket, and Thomas Wiggin in what is now Stratham; Ralph Hall, Thomas Leavitt and Thomas Wilson, all of whom had located on the eastern side of the Squamscott river.

The history of the Rev. John Wheelwright is too well known to need extended notice. A native of a little hamlet in Lincolnshire, England, he was a university man, a brother-in-law of the celebrated Anne Hutchinson, a contemporary at the university with Oliver Cromwell, and a friend of Sir Henry Vane. He landed in Boston, May 26, 1636, soon became pastor of a church in the colony, and later was disfranchised and banished from Massachusetts for his religious views, or rather, perhaps, for utterances which the church authorities were pleased to construe as heretical. The sentence against him was pronounced in the early part of November, 1637, and he was allowed but two weeks in which to depart. To his banishment from Massachusetts is attributable the settlement of Exeter, for Wheelwright came at once to New Hampshire, and as soon as possible made preparations for the settlement at the falls of Squamscott river, in a region then an almost unbroken wilderness.

Most of the earliest settlers were friends and acquaintances of Wheelwright, parishioners and adherents from Mount Wollaston, where he had been pastor of the church, and connections and friends who had arrived not long before from England.

The task which confronted the little band of pioneers was indeed a formidable one. The region in which they were about to establish homes was remote from any settlement, and could be reached only after a hazardous and painful journey, indeed, in those days a long one, beset with privation and danger.

The country was practically a forest-covered region, trees must be felled, and clearings made, rude dwellings must be constructed, all of which demanded toil and patience. They were, however, a hardy, fearless band, confident in their leader, eager to establish themselves in a country where they would truly be free, firm in their religious convictions, and strong of character and purpose.

Under the jurisdiction of no particular government they formed themselves into a body politic, chose their own officials and made their own laws, that "they might live together quietly and peaceably in all godliness and honesty." For several years this form of government existed and the little democracy continued, until in 1643, Exeter was annexed to the County of Essex, in Massachusetts.

The Rev. Mr. Wheelwright, being still under the sentence of banishment, then removed with a few of his adherents to Maine, where he soon became one of the most prominent among the early colonists. It is said that he was the ancestor of all the Wheelwrights in Massachusetts, Maine and New Hampshire. He died at Salisbury in November, 1679, at the age of eighty-five years.

In all probability the number of families in Exeter the first year of the settlement did not greatly exceed twenty. This number however increased year by year, and it was not long before the town had become an important settlement. Most of the early comers were of English birth or descent. A brief sketch of the heads of families is as follows:

George Barlow, of whom prior to his residence in Exeter little is known, came probably in the early spring of 1640, and the following year and in succeeding years received grants of land from the town. It is thought that he preached at times during his residence here. He remained only a few years in the settlement.

George Bates, a thatcher, came from Boston and stayed but a short time here; Jeremiah Blackwell stayed but a short time also.

Richard Bulgar, b. 1608, came to America in the fleet with Winthrop; resided in Boston and Rhode Island; in Exeter only a few years. Edward Colcord, b. 1616 or 1617; came to America, 1631; assisted Wheelwright in obtaining his land grants from the Indian sagamores, resided in Exeter for brief periods several times.

John Cram, who had come to Boston as early as 1635, was one of the earliest settlers here, served as townsman in 1648 and 1649, and later removed to Hampton, where he died. He is described as having been a good old man, "just in his generation."

Thos. Crawley came to Exeter, perhaps in the spring of 1640; remained several years; removed probably to Maine.

Godfrey Dearborn of Devonshire, Eng., came to Exeter with his wife and two or three children. He was one of the earliest settlers, and was selectman in 1648. It has been thought that he lived in what is now Stratham. He removed to Hampton about 1650; died Feb. 4, 1686.

Henry Elkins, a tailor, was of Boston in 1634, agreed with Wheelwright in his religious views; came to Exeter in 1638. He resided here until 1645, when he went to Hampton. He died there Nov. 19, 1668.

Wm. Cole of Boston in 1637, was a signer of the Combination; probably accompanied Wheelwright to Wells; removed later to Hampton, where, in 1662, he died.

John Compton of Roxbury, in 1634, received a large share of land allotments here, removed after a brief stay to Boston.

Lawrence Copeland of Braintree, was in Exeter, April 3, 1638; returned to Braintree probably after a short stay; lived to the age of a hundred years.

Darby Field, described by Winthrop as an Irishman, came to Exeter in the earliest days of the settlement. He was the first European who visited the White Mountains (1642). He later resided at Oyster river (Durham); died in 1649.

Gabriel Fish, fisherman, came from Boston to Exeter in 1638. A few years later he returned to Boston.

Isaac Gross, a friend of Wheelwright, followed him from Boston to Exeter. He received a liberal grant of land here, and was chosen the first ruler of the plantation of Exeter. He returned to Boston after a residence here of a few years.

Ralph Hall, b. 1618, was here, perhaps, when Wheelwright came. He resided here at two or three different periods, and about Oct. 10, 1664, received a grant of fifty acres of land. He was later elected to several offices, and held positions of trust. He died in March, 1701.

Christopher Helme, of Lincolnshire, was also a very early settler. Upon the departure of Wheelwright in 1643, he returned to Boston, from which place in a short time he removed to Warwick, R. I., where he died before December, 1650.

Edward Hilton, who had settled in this vicinity before Wheelwright's company came, lived in what is now South Newmarket, as early as December, 1639. He had been a fishmonger in London before emigrating from England to America, in 1623. He settled at Dover Point first, received a large grant of land later, and came here, as we have seen, before 1640. He became a leading man among the settlers, and prominent in town affairs. He died in 1671.

William Hilton, a brother of Edward, came over to Plymouth in the ship Fortune, Nov. 11, 1621. He remained at that place until 1623, when he was joined by his wife and two children, who came over from England in the ship Anne. Soon afterward the family came to New Hampshire, and were among the earliest settlers between Exeter and Dover. Hilton later was accounted a citizen of the latter place, but not long after 1644 he went to Maine, settling between Kittery and York. He died in York in 1665 or 1666.

Samuel Hutchinson, bachelor, brother of Mrs. Wheelwright, came to Exeter early in 1638; remained a year or two. He died in Boston, it is believed in 1677.

Christopher Lawson came probably from Lincolnshire, Eng., in July, 1637, to Boston, Mass., whence he came to Exeter, perhaps the following year. He lived part of the time in Boston, part here; went before 1665 to Maine, where he became prominent.

Thomas Leavitt was another of the Lincolnshire emigrants; came here early, where he resided for some time before removing to Hampton about 1643. Three of his sons, probably, were residents of Exeter.

Edmund Littlefield, "a warm partisan" of Wheelwright, came here with the earliest settlers, but removed with that minister to Wells, where he became a leading man. He died Dec. 11, 1661.

Francis Littlefield, eldest son of Edmund, was born in 1619, came here early but remained only a few years, going from Exeter to Woburn, Mass., thence to Dover, and finally to Wells, where he closed his long life in 1712.

Christopher Marshall of Boston in 1634, settled here early but remained only a short time.

Francis Mathews, one of the John Mason company sent over from England in 1631, remained here only a short time, removing later to Dover (now Durham), where he died about 1648.

Griffin Montague of Brookline in 1635, came here about 1639, removed later to Cape Porpoise, Maine. He died before April 1, 1672.

William Moore (spelled also Mauer or Mawer) of Boston, came here early, became prominent in Exeter, did his share in the upbuilding of the new town and resided here all his life.

Richard Morris of Boston, held military offices under the Massachusetts government; came here about 1638, but remained only about as long as Wheelwright.

Nicholas Needham of Boston in 1636; came to Exeter with Wheelwright, probably; was chosen second ruler of the settlement; remained but a few years.

Thomas Pettit of Boston in 1634, came here early, was elected selectman in 1652 and 1655. His son, Thomas Pettit, Jr., had a grant of thirty acres of land in 1649.

Philemon Pormort, came from Alford, in Lincolnshire, Eng., was a friend of Wheelwright's; came here early, and later went to Wells, thence to Boston, and from there, probably to Great Island or Portsmouth.

Robert Read was of Boston as early as 1635, came to Exeter with the early settlers, and several years later, like so many others, removed to Hampton.

Edward Rishworth, a native probably of Saleby, England, was one of the pioneers in Exeter; in 1640 was chosen by the court of the town "secretary"; went with Wheelwright to Wells.

Henry Roby, did not come here probably until the spring of 1640; selectman in 1650; removed to Hampton in 1688; became a judge of the Court of Sessions after New Hampshire was made a royal province.

George Ruobone or Rabone, early settler, followed Wheelwright to Wells.

Robert Seward came, probably about 1640, stayed but a short time; later of Portsmouth.

John Smart, came from Norfolk in England to Hingham, Mass., in 1635, bringing with him his wife and two sons. He came to Exeter early, and lived in that part of the town which is now Newmarket.

Robert Smith, a man of some prominence here for a short time in the early settlement, went to Hampton.

Anthony Stanyan, glover, came from England to Boston in 1635, came to Exeter a few years later, afterward became a magistrate and town clerk, before going to Hampton, from which place he was representative to the General Court of Massachusetts in 1654.

Augustine Storre, brother-in-law of Wheelwright, was in Exeter in the spring of 1638; chosen assistant to the first ruler; was held in high esteem by the settlers; left Exeter at the time of Wheelwright's departure.

Samuel Walker, described as being a man of discretion and fairness; remained in Exeter but a short time.

James Wall, carpenter, sent over from England in the employ of John Mason, patentee of New Hampshire; came to Exeter before April 3, 1638, and doubtless remained during the formation of the settlement, and probably about twelve years, proving himself to be a useful citizen. He went to Hampton in 1650, and died there Oct. 3, 1659.

George Walton, born about 1615, came to New Hampshire about 1635, settled at Exeter not many years later and remained a short time, later going to Dover, Portsmouth and Great Island.

Thomas Wardell, shoemaker, Lincolnshire, Eng., settled at Boston prior to the winter of 1634; supported Wheelwright, and came to Exeter about 1638. He held several offices here, but remained only a few years. He removed to Ipswich or Boston.

William Wardell, came to this country, probably in 1633; came to Exeter in 1638; went to Wells with Wheelwright.

William Wenbourne of Boston, 1635, came to Exeter probably in 1639; returned to Boston probablly before 1648.

William Wentworth, a native of Lincolnshire, Eng., was born in March, 1615 or 1616; came to America probably in July, 1637; one of the earliest settlers of Exeter; joined Wheelwright in his departure from this place, and resided in Wells until 1649, when he removed to Dover. He was a sturdy, able man of strong religious convictions, and the ancestor of many who have made a worthy mark in life.

Thomas Wight, another early settler in Exeter, lived here but a few years.

Balthazar Willix, came to Exeter probably before 1640. His wife was murdered on her way from Dover to Exeter in May or June of 1648, and not long afterward Willix removed to Salisbury, where he died March 23, 1651.

Thomas Wilson, came with his wife and three sons, Humphrey, Samuel, and Joshua, to this country in June, 1633; lived in Roxbury for a time; sympathized with Wheelwright and came with him to Exeter; built the first grist-mill in town; became ruler in October, 1642; died in the summer of the following year. His widow married John Legat. Humphrey Wilson resided here probably all through his life.

These men are those who are known to have been the earliest settlers in Exeter. The majority of them stayed but a few years. They were the pioneers, however, and worthy of mention. William Furber and John Underhill were in this place temporarily but were residents of Dover.

The Dudley family was here as early as 1650. The Rev. Samuel Dudley had eighteen sons and daughters, who intermarried with the Hiltons, Gilmans, Leavitts, Lyfords, Halls, and other families, and their descendants are numerous.

John Folsom, came from England; settled in Exeter between 1650 and 1660. He and John Folsom, his son, were prominent in town affairs. Their descendants, many of them, became leading men in the state and nation.

The Leavitt family, too, is one of Exeter's oldest. Samuel and Moses were the first to settle here in the latter part of the seventeenth century. They were both leading men in town.

Jonathan Thing, first of the family of that name in town, held town offices in 1658, and later. Samuel and Bartholomew, his sons, were town officials also.

The Gilmans, Conners, Lyfords, Gordons, Smiths, Robinsons and Odlins in Exeter date back to the early days of the town. Many noted Americans were descendants of these men.

The Barker, Colcord, and Dollof families were here early; and those of Kimball, Shute and others were here in the first years of the town. Others here in the first century were the Magoons, Pearsons, Lawrences, Kings, Odiornes, Lamsons, Tiltons, Philbricks, Poors, Perrymans, Emerys, and others, men who helped establish the town of Exeter in the days that "tried men's souls."

The following list of names given in the "History of Exeter" by the late Hon. Charles H. Bell, as found on the town books or in other sources, between 1640 and 1680, will serve to bring the "Early Settlement" to a close:

MILITARY HISTORY.

When the French and Indian War broke out in 1744, Exeter, more than a century old, was no longer a frontier town, and consequently did not, as in the preceding Indian wars, suffer any inroads from the redskins and the French. The town however, from time to time furnished men for military service, many of whom did scout duty on the frontier.

In 1745, the famous Louisburg expedition occurred, and among the total of six hundred and fifteen men furnished for the expedition itself and as a reinforcement, Exeter contributed probably between forty and fifty men, among them Major Ezekiel Gilman, who distinguished himself by an ingenious device for transporting artillery over swamps, Capts. Trueworthy and Daniel Ladd, Lieuts. James Dudley, Samuel Conner, and Jonathan Folsom, and Dr. Robert Gilman, surgeon, who was wounded near Louisburg by a piece of shell.

In 1746, Exeter raised two or three companies of soldiers, several of whom lost their lives, among them Lieut. Bradley, who with five companions was slain by Indians near Rumford, now Concord; and John (or Nathaniel) Folsom, shot by Indians at Nottingham.

In 1755 New Hampshire raised five hundred men for the Crown Point expedition, and of this number Exeter had a company of eighty-four men. Other Exeter soldiers were sent out in the second regiment raised to reinforce General Johnson after the engagement at Lake George when the French troops and Indians under Baron Dieskau were repulsed, and the Exeter men rendered distinguished service.

During the other expeditions and engagements of the war Exeter bore her share of the burden nobly, and contributed many of her citizens for service in the field.

REVOLUTIONARY WAR.

Exeter's part in the great struggle for American independence began with the raid, under the command of the famous General Sullivan, upon Fort William and Mary at Newcastle, in December, 1774, seventy-five or more of her citizens taking part in the affair, and the seizure of the cannon, arms and gunpowder.

On the nineteenth of April, 1775, that day so momentous in the history of our country, as soon as the news of the affair at Concord and Lexington was known, Exeter was ready to take the field of Liberty, and when at daybreak the next morning, an express arrived summoning volunteers to march at once to Cambridge, there was no hesitation on the part of the townspeople; the bells were rung, drums beat to arms, and by the middle of the forenoon, one hundred and eight men under the command of Capt. Hackett were on their way to the front. Of these men the following list gives the names of a few: Capt. James Hackett, Lieuts. J. W. Gilman and Nathaniel Gookin, Sergts. J. T. Gilman, Gideon Lamson, Noah Emery, Jr., Privates Eleazer Ferguson, Ebenezer Light, Jonathan Lougee, John Light, and Caleb Mitchell. Of this number John T. Gilman afterwards became a member of the Continental Congress, and for fourteen years Governor of this State.

During that year and all the years of the war Exeter contributed many of her sons, showing that her patriotism and loyalty to the American cause was great and true. The total number of men furnished was not less than two hundred, most of whom belonged here. The list of officers too was not small, for in the regular Continental service alone, there were of Exeter, one brigadier general, one major, one captain and A. A. general, three surgeons, three commissaries, two captains and two lieutenants.

The jail in Exeter during the war was used as a military prison, and several Exeter men served as guards.

In the War of 1812, Exeter rendered no distinguished service, but several companies were raised here for brief periods; in the War with Mexico, too, she had but little part. It is to the great struggle of the War of the Rebellion that we must look for the repetition of that self-sacrifice, heroism and loyalty that characterized the people of this town in the Revolution.

EXETER IN THE CIVIL WAR.

When in April, 1861, Fort Sumpter fell, and the storm clouds of sectional feeling between the North and the South broke forth in the declaration of war, the patriotism and loyalty of the New England states was tested in the fires of the Nation's need. Like the great majority of the towns in this vicinity, the citizens of Exeter answered to the call of duty with a willing and prompt response, and made immediate preparation to do their share in the great conflict which was to follow, and continue throughout four long, terrible years.

This duty Exeter performed in a noble manner, and there is no stain on her record of loyalty and service. Every call for men and aid received a prompt response, many of her noblest sons left their homes and loved ones, for the south country, many of whom never returned. Several hundred soldiers were contributed by the town, most of whom resided here. These men were engaged in many of the great struggles of the war and very many of them lost their lives in the service of their country. After more than forty years since the surrender of Lee at Appomattox, and the new birth of a reunited nation, the ranks of the Grand Army, depleted constantly by the inroads of that great destroyer Death, are but a remnant of the mighty host that passed in the grand review at Washington; and they dwindle year by year. Let us therefore render the greater honor to the few "old soldiers" who still remain, and let us linger with reverence a moment over the roll of honor, which is herewith given, as a tribute to our veterans and to our departed dead. It is to be regretted that there is no complete list. The roll-call:

CHURCHES.

The first church in Exeter was, except that at Hampton, the first formed in the State, as it was founded in 1638. It included in its membership all or practically all of the adult settlers here, for the colonization of the towns in this section of New England was essentially a religious one.

The members of the church wrote to the church at Boston probably in the autumn of 1638, requesting that the Rev. John Wheelwright be dismissed from that church to become their minister. After some delay the request was granted. Mr. Wheelwright was dismissed, January 6, 1639, and with him, Richard Morris, Richard Bulgar, Philemon Pormort, Isaac

Gross, Christopher Marshall, George Bates, Thomas Wardell and William Wardell "unto the church of Christ at the falls of the Piscataqua, if they be rightly gathered and ordered," and on March 3, 1639, Susanna Hutchinson, widow, Mary, wife of Wheelwright, Lenora, wife of Richard Morris, and Henry Elkins and his wife, without conditions.

The Rev. Mr. Wheelwright, after refusing to admit the authority of Massachusetts over the settlement at Exeter, removed to Wells, in what is now the State of Maine, about the year 1643. His successor as pastor of the little flock was Mr. Thos. Rashleigh, who came to Exeter in the spring of 1643, received from the town a grant of a lot May 6th of that year, and acted as the minister here for, probably, nearly a year.

In the spring of 1644, some of the inhabitants attempted to gather a new church, and to call the aged Rev. Stephen Bachiler of Hampton to act as their minister, but the Massachusetts General Court refused to permit the carrying out of their purpose, but seemed willing that the Rev. Mr. Wheelwright should return to them. Accordingly the majority of the townspeople tried to induce that clergyman to become their pastor again, making a grant of land to him, his heirs and successors forever, "with these conditions, that he doth come amongst us again." Mr. Wheelwright, however, did not, for certain reasons of his own, choose to accept, and the church remained without any settled pastor for a period of about five years, though probably they held some religious services in the interim.

The Rev. Samuel Dudley, a son of Governor Dudley, son-in-law of Governor John Winthrop, and an eminent clergyman in the colony, became pastor in 1650, and continued as such until his death in 1683.

The first meeting-house was built, probably, in 1652. It was a primitive, rudely-constructed building, but with later additions served the society as a place of worship for more than forty years.

For several years after Mr. Dudley's death, the society had no settled pastor, though it was supplied by the Rev. Wm. Wentworth, one of Exeter's early settlers who had gone with Mr. Wheelwright to Wells, and, probably, by the Rev. John Cotton

The third resident pastor of the church, Rev. John Clark, a graduatae of Harvard, was settled in 1698, over a church of twenty-eight persons then gathered in the new meeting-house completed in December of 1696, or early in 1697. His successor, Rev. John Odlin, also a graduate of Harvard, was minister of the church from 1706 to 1754. During his ministry, in 1727, the parish of Newmarket was set off from Exeter, and incorporated Dec. 15th of that year. A new meeting-house was begun in 1730 and occupied Aug. 28, 1731.

In February, 1742, Epping Parish was set off from Exeter, and in June of the same year the parish of Brentwood was made separate of this town.

At the time of the settlement in 1743, of Mr. Odlin's son, Woodbridge Odlin, as his colleague—who, with his father, was opposed to the measures and influence of Whitefield, during "the great awakening"—a secession took place, and resulted in the formation of the second church with forty-one members, over which Rev. Daniel Rogers was settled from 1748 until his death in 1785.

The Rev. John Odlin died Nov. 20, 1754, and his son continued as minister of the First Church during the troubled period which preceded the Revolution, showing himself to be a warm patriot and zealous advocate of the cause of Freedom. He died March 10, 1776, and was succeeded as pastor of the church by Rev. Isaac Mansfield, a Harvard graduate who had rendered services as chaplain in the Continental Army, and who was installed Oct. 9, 1776. In 1778, Mr. John Rice, one of the members, died, bequeathing to the society by his will, the house on Centre street which became the parsonage, and certain lands, to be employed for religious purposes, but in case of the failure to carry out the accompanying provisions to be used for the benefit of a grammar school here. The Rev. Mr. Mansfield severed his connection with the church Sept. 18, 1787, and the society united with the Second Church in supporting public worship, which was continued for more than two years. A joint call extended by the societies to Rev. David Tappan of Newbury, Mass., was not accepted by that minister because the call was not unanimous; the societies could not agree upon any other pastor, and in 1790, the Rev. Wm. P. Rowland, a Dartmouth alumnus, was called by and installed pastor over the First Church. Eight years later (1798) the present church edifice was erected. For thirty-eight years, until Dec. 5, 1828, Mr. Rowland continued his labors as pastor of the church, and was succeeded March 12, 1829, by Rev. John Smith, a native of Weathersfield, Conn., and a graduate of Yale.

In 1838, May 31st, the Rev. William Williams, a Yale graduate, became pastor and remained until Oct. 1, 1842. He later entered the medical profession.

The Rev. Joy H. Fairchild, also a Yale man and pastor Sept. 20, 1843-July 30, 1844, was the next minister. His successor, Rev. R. D. Hitchcock, a graduate of Amherst, was pastor Nov. 19, 1845-July 7, 1852. He later was a professor for three years in Bowdoin College, and sometime afterward President of the Union Theological Seminary, New York. He died June 17, 1887.

Rev. Wm. D. Hitchock was pastor here about a year, Oct. 5, 1853-Nov. 23, 1854, the day of his death.

Rev. Nathaniel Lassell was installed pastor June 19, 1856, and ended his pastorate three years later, in 1859.

Rev. Elias Nason, a graduate of Brown, came in November, 1860, and remained until Memorial Day, 1865.

Rev. John O. Barrows, an Amherst man, was installed Dec. 5, 1866, and received his dismissal Oct 6., 1869, closing his work that he might enter upon mission work in Asia.

Rev. Swift Byington, a Yale man, the sixteenth pastor of the church, was installed as such, June 2, 1871, and remained more than twenty years, when Rev. W. L. Anderson came for a pastorate which continued until the latter part of 1907, when Rev. Geo. H. Driver, the present pastor, was installed.

SECOND CHURCH.

In 1743, forty-one members of the First Church in Exeter seceded from that body, and proceeded to erect a new meeting-house and to organize a separate church. The house was finished in 1744, on land given by Colonel Peter Gilman and Samuel Gilman, situated on the north side of what is now Front street. It was a good-sized building of two stories, with a steeple, which held a bell. For some years the society had no settled pastor, but in 1748, Rev. Daniel Rogers accepted a call to the church and was pastor from Aug. 31st of that year until his death in 1785.

After the death of Mr. Rogers, the society for nearly seven years was without a settled pastor. Rev. Samuel Austin of New Haven, Conn., supplied for several months in 1790, but declined to become settled pastor. In November that year Rev. Joseph Brown was installed pastor, and remained until 1797; after which, for a time, the church declined. Preaching and worship was maintained, however, the church being supplied, and the parish organization continued unbroken. Rev. Hosea Hildreth came to Exeter in 1811 as an instructor in the Academy and was engaged to supply the church. He continued to do so for a period of nearly five years, and until the society secured a settled pastor.

The church was reorganized Dec. 24, 1812. On the eleventh of September, 1817, Rev. Isaac Hurd became pastor. During his pastorate the old meeting-house which had been in use for a period of almost eighty years, was replaced by a new edifice erected on land furnished for the purpose by the trustees of the Academy, and completed by March, 1824.

The Rev. Samuel D. Dexter was ordained colleague pastor with Mr. Hurd, Dec. 2, 1847, but lived only a few years, his career being cut short by his death. Rev. Asa Mann was installed as Mr. Hurd's colleague, Nov. 19, 1851. On the fourth of October, 1856, the Rev. Dr. Hurd ended his labors on earth. Less than a year later, July 8, 1857, Mr. Mann was dismissed, and was succeeded by Rev. O. T. Lanphear, who was installed Feb. 2, 1858. He was a native of Vermont, graduate of Middlebury College, and came to Exeter from a church in Lowell, Mass. After six years of successful labor here he was succeeded as pastor by Rev. John W. Chickering, Jr., a native of Portland, Me., and a Bowdoin graduate, who was installed Sept. 5, 1865, and remained until his dismissal July 18, 1870, when he went from here to Washington, D. C., to accept a professorship in the Deaf Mute College.

The eighth pastor of the church, Rev. Geo. E. Street, was installed March 30, 1871. He was a native of Cheshire, Conn., a graduate of Yale, and came to Exeter from the First Church in Wiscasset, Maine. He remained until his death.

Rev. Alexander P. Bourne came about 1896, and was succeeded by the Rev. S. H. Dana, D. D., who came from Springfield, Ill., several years ago, and continues as pastor at the present time.

BAPTISTS.

The first Baptist church in Exeter was organized with ten members, October 17, 1800. The church was small and for several years was not able to support a resident pastor. The first place of meeting was at the dwelling house of Harvey Colcord, and afterwards the society met at the Centre schoolhouse. The first meeting-house was built on Spring street, and dedicated in 1805. For several months in 1806, Mr. Barnabas Bates preached to the society. In 1809, Rev. E. L. Boyd became preacher and continued as such with success for two years. During the period 1814-1816, Revs. Chas. O. Kimball and Jas. McGregore supplied the pulpit a part of the time. Later services were conducted by divinity students. In 1817, the first Sunday school was commenced in connection with the church, the first teacher of which was Deacon John F. Moses, who held the office of superintendent during nearly half a century.

The society was incorporated by the Legislature in 1818, and in that year Rev. Ferdinand Ellis, the first settled pastor, came, who remained from June, 1818, to September, 1828. From the autumn of that year until February, 1833, Rev. John N. Brown served as pastor. He returned to the church in 1834, and remained until April, 1838.

The second meeting-house of the society was dedicated Nov. 19, 1834, and served as a place of worship until the church on Front street was erected. From May 29, 1833, to Feb. 16, 1834, the Rev. John Cannon, Yorkshire, England, had ministered to the society. After Mr. Brown's dismissal Rev. J. G. Naylor supplied the pulpit, but it was more than two years before a pastor was settled.

Rev. Noah Hooper, Jr., was the next resident minister, remaining with the society from Dec. 1, 1840, to July 20, 1845.

For nearly three years after this the church was without a pastor, but Mr. T. H. Archibald preached during a part of the time. Revs. Elijah J. Harris, 1848-April 7, 1850; James French, January 1851-Jan. 1, 1853; Mr. Russell; Franklin Merriam, September, 1854-November, 1856; Jas. J. Peck, February, 1857-April, 1861, were the succeeding pastors of the church. In the summer of 1861, the Rev. Noah Hooper returned for a second pastorate, filling the position of pastor here with success and satisfaction until the autumn of 1871, when he procured a dismissal. Rev. John N. Chase became pastor, probably the first of December, 1871, and continued to minister to the society for many years.

In December of the year 1854, twenty-two members withdrew from the church on Water street, and formed a new society. Meetings were held in a hall on Water street, until a meeting-house was built on Elm street. The church was dedicated Oct. 1, 1856. The members of the church, at first, were ministered to by Rev. J. B. Lane, but shortly after the completion of the new house of worship, Rev. T. H. Archibald became their settled pastor, continuing as such for nearly two years. Following his dismissal, the church was supplied by theological students from Newton, Mass., and afterwards by the Rev. Mr. Mayhew. Rev. Chas. Newhall was installed pastor about the year 1862, and continued his labors here from that time until about 1870 or 1871. About this time (1871) the two Baptist societies united once more; the Elm street meeting-house was abandoned, to come into the possession, later, of the Second Congregational Society, by which it was used as a chapel.

In 1874-1875 the reunited Baptist Society erected a handsome brick church on the corner lot of Spring and Front streets.

The Rev. John N. Chase closed his pastorate in December, 1894. The succeeding pastor, Rev. A. E. Woodsum, Colby College, 1875, and Newton Theological Seminary, 1879, who came here from Massachusetts, is still pastor of the church.

UNIVERSALISTS.

As early as 1810, probably, a society of Universalists was formed in Exeter, and in 1819 incorporated. For about ten years or more, religious services were held, but at the end of that time the organization was abandoned. Some years later, however, meetings were held once more, and services maintained in the old court-house, by the Rev. Hosea Ballou and other clergymen of the Universalist Church. On the 26th of May, 1831, a new society was formed, and later a house of worship was erected on the east side of Centre street.

Among the preachers who supplied the new church were the Revs. T. K. Taylor and Wm. C. Hanscom. Rev. James Shrigley of Baltimore, Md., was installed pastor, June 16, 1837, and remained three years or more. The next pastor, Rev. H. P. Stevens, stayed here but a year or two, and was succeeded some time after his removal by the Rev. Henry Jewell. During his pastorate the church increased in membership to such an extent that it was thought advisable to construct a new and larger church. This was done, and the church, dedicated Dec. 18, 1845, has served as a place of worship successively for the Universalists, Unitarians and Methodists.

The next pastor was Rev. R. O. Williams, who was a physician as well as a clergyman. His stay was brief. Succeeding pastors were the Revs. John L. Stevens and Silas S. Fletcher, the latter of whom was the last pastor of the church. In 1854, the Universalist Society disposed of the meeting-house to the newly formed Unitarian Society and discontinued their separate organization.

CHRISTIAN SOCIETY.

The members of this society held religious meetings prior to the year 1830. Elder Abner Jones preached here occasionally, but the first regular minister here was probably Elder John Flanders, who remained five or six years, during which time the society grew, formed a church and erected a chapel at the foot of Franklin street. Elder Elijah Shaw and Elder Edwin Burnham who came about the year 1840, were succeeding pastors. The chapel had to be enlarged to accommodate the increased membership during Elder Burnham's pastorate, but about 1842, or not long after, many seceded through the influence of the teachings of the noted Wm. Miller, and the Adventists. This loss of members weakened the Christian Society, but the organization continued until about the year 1860, the members being ministered to by Elders Simeon Swett, J. C. Blodgett, and finally John W. Tilton. The society became extinct a year or two before the outbreak of the Civil War.

ADVENTISTS.

This society, made up chiefly of former members of the Christian and Methodist Societies, was constituted in 1843 and continued to hold meetings in the chapel on Clifford street for many years. The present church on Elm street was erected in 1901, and Elder Knowlton was pastor for several years, being succeeded by the present pastor, Elder F. H. Laird.

METHODISTS.

The first efforts for the formation of a Methodist Church in Exeter were made by five ladies in 1830. At their invitation, the Rev. D. I. Robinson, then of Newmarket came and preached here. The following year Rev. A. H. Worthing of Newmarket held services here occasionally. In 1832, Exeter became a regular station, and Rev. A. P. Brigham was appointed pastor of the Methodists here. Meetings were held in the old court-house. In November, 1832, John Clement, Samuel Tilton, and Moses P. Lowell organized the First Episcopal Methodist Society in Exeter.

In 1833, Rev. A. H. Worthing was stationed here; in 1834, Rev. Samuel Hoyt. The society occupied, by invitation, the old Universalist church, but in 1834 erected a brick church of their own upon Portsmouth avenue. The sermon of dedication was preached by the Rev. Geo. Storrs, Feb. 10, 1835. Rev. W. H. Hatch became pastor that year, but remained only a year, being succeeded by the Rev. Alfred Metcalf, whose successors were Revs. O. Hinds and Jacob Sanborn.

Later pastors were Revs. E. D. Trickey, 1840-1841, at which time (1841) the church numbered about 180 members; and D. I. Robinson, 1842, in which year he and a majority of the members of the church, because of the lack of harmony in the society, seceded and formed a Wesleyan Methodist Church, which was never very prosperous.

For some years after 1842 Exeter was united with Amesbury, Mass., and had no separate pastor. In 1847, Rev. Isaac W. Huntley was pastor; in 1848-9, Rev. Ebenezer Peaslee.

In 1858, Rev. James M. Buckley, a young but able preacher, supplied the pulpit and drew a large number of people to the church. He later became a distinguished clergyman, a doctor of divinity and editor of the leading Methodist journal of the United States.

Rev. Mr. Stokes had charge of the society the following year, but the society was already declining and soon ceased to maintain public worship.

In 1861 and 1862, the meeting-house was opened occasionally, but it was not until 1867 that a new society was organized. Rev. C. W. Millen preached for a few weeks that year, and after his departure Rev. J. D. Folsom came, and the society grew in numbers and prosperity.

Rev. H. B. Copp succeeded Mr. Folsom, and remained three years. During his stay, the Unitarian church on the corner of Front and Centre streets was purchased by the society.

The pastors who came after Mr. Copp ended his labors here, were the Revs. S. E. Quimby, three years; S. C. Farnham, 1874-1875; J. H. Haines, three years; M. Howard, 1879-1880; J. W. Walker, 1881-part of 1882; C. H. Hannaford, remainder of 1882; C. J. Fowler, 1883; John W. Adams, 1884-1886; C. N. Nutter, 1887; Rev. G. A. McLaughlin, 1888-91; Rev. S. E. Quimby, 1891-94; Rev. T. W. Whiteside, 1894; John H. Emerson, 1895-96; Rev. Wm. Woods, 1897-1903; Rev. W. T. Boultenhouse, 1903-05, until his death; Mr. Parsons of Boston University supplied several months. Rev. R. H. Huse came in 1906 and is the present pastor.

The Rev. Mr. Huse is an alumnus of Drew Theological Seminary, 1903, and was pastor of churches in Sanbornville and Brookfield before coming to the Exeter church.

CATHOLIC CHURCH.

The Catholics of Exeter were first organized for the observance of public worship in 1853 by the Rev. John McDonnell of Haverhill, Mass. There were not many Catholics here at the time, and at first they had no church edifice, and services were held only occasionally. The number of communicants of the faith increased however year by year, and in July, 1859, the Rev. J. Ph. Perrache was appointed regular pastor of the people here. Meetings were held in the old Universalist church on Centre street, for a time, but in 1868 a brick church was erected on Centre street, and at the same time the house on the corner of Water street was made into the parochial residence for the pastor.

Father Perrache, after he had remained here nearly three years, was succeeded in April, 1862, by the Rev. Bernard O'Hara. In December, 1865, the Rev. Canon Walsh became pastor, to minister to the people for about three and a half years, at the end of which time, his successor, Rev. M. C. O'Brien, came (June, 1869) for a stay of a few months.

In November of the same year Rev. Charles Egan was appointed pastor. Father Egan's pastorate continued until December, 1875, when his place was taken by the Rev. Michael Lucy. Rev. John Power, the next pastor of the church, came in October, 1878. He was a graduate of St. Charles College, Baltimore, Md., where he was ordained in October, 1878. He was succeeded as pastor of Saint Michael's by the Rev. John Canning, and prepared for the priesthood at Rome, where he spent several years, and who came to Exeter from the church in Machias, Maine, and continued as pastor here until his death in June, 1904.

Rev. Wm. Cavanaugh was temporary pastor for a few months, at the end of which time (September, 1904) the Rev. John C. Finen, D. D., came to begin his pastorate, which has continued since that time.

The Rev. Dr. Finen graduated at Laval College in Montreal, and later at Laval University in Quebec, where he received the degree of Doctor of Divinity. He was ordained June 26, 1888, by Cardinal Taschereau, and the same year appointed to Saint John's Church in Concord, where he remained until 1891, when he was appointed to several missions in that section of New Hampshire, among them Tilton, where he built a church, Ashland, Plymouth, Lincoln and Woodsum, coming from his labors there to Saint Michael's, Exeter.

THE UNITARIAN SOCIETY.

The Unitarian Church in Exeter was formed in June, 1854, the membership consisting chiefly of former members of the Second Parish who entertained Unitarian opinions, and of Universalists, whose society had declined.

The Universalist church at the corner of Centre and Front streets was purchased by the society, and served as a house of worship for fourteen years. For nearly two years the society had no settled pastor, depending for preaching upon visiting ministers who supplied the pulpit, though during a considerable part of the time Rev. Joseph Angier, a graduate of Harvard, was preacher. In April, 1856, however, Rev. Jonathan Cole was installed first resident pastor. Mr. Cole was a graduate of Harvard, and an able preacher, continuing here for five or six years, before going to Newburyport, Mass.

His successor, Rev. John C. Learned, was ordained pastor here May 6, 1863, and remained in Exeter nearly six and a half years. During his pastorate the society erected the church on the corner of Elm and Maple streets. Mr. Learned later went to St. Louis, Mo., and was succeeded as pastor of the church here by Rev. Edward Crowninshield, who remained only a year.

About a year after Mr. Crowninshield closed his labors, the Rev. B. F. McDaniel came for a pastorate which continued during a period of ten and a half years. During Mr. McDaniel's stay in Exeter, the parsonage was built upon the lot adjoining the church. His successor, Rev. John E. Mande, a Harvard graduate, served only one year. The next pastor, Rev. Alfred C. Nickerson, came to the church in April, 1886, and was succeeded by Rev. Edward Green, the present pastor, about twelve years ago. The Rev. Mr. Green is a graduate of Brown University.

EPISCOPAL CHURCH.

The Episcopal Society in Exeter came into existence about the year 1865. It originated through the desire of students at the Academy who wished to enjoy the services in the church in which they had been accustomed to worship. The Rev. Dr. (later Bishop) F. D. Huntingdon conducted the first service in the town hall in July, 1865. In September of that year the parish of Christ Church was organized. In October, Rev. Geo. F. Cushman, a graduate of Amherst in 1840, became pastor. He remained six months. Services were held in the town hall at first, and afterwards in the old Congregational vestry on Centre street.

Mr. Cushman's successor, Rev. James Haughton, a native of Boston, and a graduate of Harvard, 1860, came for a pastorate of a few years, during which the church on Elliott street was erected, the means for its construction being raised through the praiseworthy efforts of the treasurer of the parish, Miss Caroline E. Harris, and of the rector. The church was ready for occupancy at Christmas, 1867, and consecrated Sept. 30, 1868. Mr. Haughton resigned to take charge of a newly formed society in Hanover, and was succeeded by the Rev. Dr. Samuel P. Parker, a Harvard alumnus, who remained two years. The next pastor was Rev. Henry Ferguson (Trinity College), who came in July, 1872, and was pastor, except for an absence of a year, until about 1878, his place being filled in the interim, while he was abroad, by Rev. J. H. George.

Rev. Geo. H. Morgan, like Mr. Ferguson a native of Connecticut and graduate of Trinity, was pastor of the church during a period of more than eight years. Upon his resignation to accept the rectorship of a church in New Haven, his place was taken by the Rev. Edward Goodridge, another Connecticut and Trinity College man, who began his labors here Feb. 26, 1887. Mr. Goodridge had previously been in charge of a church in Geneva, Switzerland. He remained in Exeter many years.

His successor, the Rev. Victor M. Haughton, an alumnus of Columbia and Haverford, came to the church from Clinton, Mass., Nov. 8, 1903, and has continued as pastor since that time.

CHRISTIAN SCIENTISTS.

The First Church of Christ, Scientist, holds regular services in a part of the Town Hall set apart for worship. It was organized here not more than a few years ago.

QUAKERS.

About the middle of the eighteenth century Exeter had a few families who were members of the Society of Friends. They held meetings for a time in a barn which was located on the south side of what is now Front street. Among them were Samuel and John Dudley. The records, however, give little information about the Friends, and the society never was very large in this town.

EDUCATIONAL ITEMS.

Philemon Pormort, one of the earliest settlers in Exeter, was an experienced schoolmaster, having taught in Boston while a resident there, and doubtless taught here also during his five years' stay.

John Legat, the second teacher, came before Master Pormort left. He had taught school in Hampton and continued to teach after his settlement here.

For two generations or more the people of Exeter, few in number, required the maintenance of elementary schools only, but about the end of the eighteenth century, the population had so increased as to demand higher schools, and a higher grade of instruction. The first schoolhouse in town was built probably about the year 1707.

Jonathan Pierpont, Nicholas Perryman, Enoch Coffin, Joseph Parsons, Robert Hale, John Graham and Ward Clark, were all schoolmasters here before the year 1725. Most of them were graduates of Harvard College.

In 1805, a law was passed by the New Hampshire Legislature, providing for the separation of towns into districts for the purpose of maintaining schools, and in 1807 it was voted by Exeter to divide the town into six school districts.

Of the teachers who rendered the longest as well as the most faithful service in the schools of Exeter may be mentioned Rev. Ferdinand Ellis, and his two daughters, Charlotte and Rhoda, Benjamin B. Thompson, and Sperry French, who was principal of the grammar school for more than a quarter of a century.

The change in the state laws providing for the grading of schools was adopted in this town in 1847. A high school was established, and the grammar and primary schools were kept separate. A handsome high school building was erected near the old town house, on Court street. Elbridge G. Dalton, A. M., Dartmouth, 1855, was principal 1848-1853. The present principal is Mr. Albion Burbank.

THE PHILLIPS EXETER ACADEMY.

The Phillips Exeter Academy was founded in 1781 by the munificence of John Phillips, LL. D., a native of Andover, Mass., but after 1741 a resident of Exeter, who bequeathed to the institution at his death in 1795 a large portion of his estate.

The academy was opened in 1783, under the preceptorship of William Woodbridge, and dedicated the same year. In December, 1870, the academy building erected in 1794 was burned. The new building was erected in 1872.

The venerable and highly esteemed Benjamin Abbott, LL. D., was the preceptor from 1788 to 1838, a period of fifty years, and his successor, Gideon L. Soule, served another very long period of time.

Among its earlier instructors were the Rev. Doctors Daniel Dana, Abiel Abbott, and Joseph S. Buckminster, James Walker, president of Harvard College, Nathan Lord, president of Dartmouth College, Hon. Alexander H. Everett, Asher Ware, judge of the district court of the United States in Maine, and Nathan Hale, editor of the Boston Daily Advertiser, and many others of equal worth and fame who followed them.

Among the students who attended the academy in the earlier years are found the names of Lewis Cass, a native of Exeter, who became Secretary of State of the United States; Everett Saltonshall, Congressman from Massachusetts; Edward Everett, the renowned scholar, orator and statesman; John G. Palfrey, member of Congress and distinguished as an author; John A. Dix, U. S. Senator from New York; Jared Sparks, the historian; Joseph G. Coggswell of the Astor Library; George Bancroft, historian; Richard Hildreth, historian; Thomas W. Dorr, of Rhode Island; Chas. Paine, Governor of Vermont; John P. Hale, U. S. Senator from New Hampshire; Alpheus Felch, Governor of Michigan and U. S. Senator; James H. Duncan, Congressman from Massachusetts; all these were students at Exeter more than a half century ago. Such a galaxy of names as appear upon the catalogue of Phillips Exeter probably cannot be equaled by those of any other preparatory school in the country. During the last half century, too, many of Exeter's graduates have become famous in the nation.

This school, New Hampshire's greatest, is considered one of the foremost if not the very first of the leading academies in America to-day, and has won a reputation for scholarship, pre-eminence in athletics, and in all branches of school interest, of which New Hampshire is justly proud. The alumni number probably more than seven thousand, and represent every state and territory of this country, and also many foreign countries.

THE ROBINSON FEMALE SEMINARY.

This preparatory school for young ladies was founded by a bequest of William Robinson of Exeter, and was first opened to students September 21, 1869.

Eben Sperry Stearns, a native of Bedford, Mass., and a graduate of Harvard in 1841, was the first principal. He remained in charge until 1875, when he went to accept the presidency of a normal college at Nashville, Tenn. Miss Harriet E. Paine, three years, Miss Annie M. Kilham, 1878-about 1883, and Geo. N. Cross, A. M., were the earliest principals after Mr. Stearns severed his connection with the school. The present principal is Harlan Melville Bisbee, A. M.

BOARD OF TRUSTEES.

James A. Tufts, Charles H. Merrill, John A. Brown, Henry W. Anderson, William Burlingame, Arthur O. Fuller, Albert N. Dow, Exeter; George Wentworth, York Harbor, Me.

The Robinson Seminary Alumnae Association was organized in 1890.

PROFESSIONAL MEN.

JUDGES AND LAWYERS.

John Gilman, a native of England, settled in Exeter before 1650, and soon became one of the most prominent men in the settlement. In the two years prior to New Hampshire's emancipation from the Massachusetts government he held the office of associate (judge) of the old Norfolk County Court. He later became a councillor of the province, and in 1682 a judge of the Court of Pleas. In 1693, he was chosen a delegate to the Assembly, and became Speaker of the House, and chosen again in 1697. He married Elizabeth Treworgy (from which the Christian name Trueworthy was derived) in 1657. He died July 24, 1708.

Robert Wadleigh came to Exeter about the year 1676. He became a leading citizen in the town and was repeatedly chosen to responsible offices. In 1692 he was appointed one of the justices of the Court of Common Pleas, a year later, a judge of the Superior Court.

Kinsley Hall, son of Ralph Hall, one of the signers of the Combination, was born in Exeter in 1652. He held several town and provincial offices, and was made judge of the Superior Court, which office he held from 1697 to 1698, and again from 1698 to 1699. He died in 1736.

Peter Coffin was a native of Devonshire, England. He came to this country while still a young man, and settled at Dover, where he became a merchant, and a successful property owner. He was a lieutenant during Philip's Indian War, held several town offices, and was a leading citizen. He removed to Exeter in 1690, soon engaged in business and rose to prominence here. He became a councillor, and later Chief Justice of the Superior Court.

Richard Hilton lived in that part of Exeter which became South Newmarket. He served as one of the selectmen for seven years between 1693 and 1715, and was made a judge of the Superior Court in 1698 and 1699.

Nicholas Gilman was born in Exeter, Dec. 26, 1678. He was a farmer and merchant. In 1729 he was commissioned a justice of the Court of Common Pleas. In 1732, he was appointed a judge of the Superior Court, holding that office about eight years. He was a large property owner, and had several slaves. He died in 1741.

Samuel Gilman, son of Judge Nicholas Gilman, was born here May 1, 1698. He was a property owner, a colonel of militia, and appointed to the bench of the Superior Court in 1740. He remained in office seven years. A man of character and ability, he was highly esteemed and respected.

These men were not educated as lawyers, but were responsible men of sense, ability and uprightness, appointed, doubtless, because of the lack of men trained in the legal profession.

Nicholas Perryman was the first trained lawyer in Exeter. He was a native of England, but came to America while a young man, taking up his residence sometime between 1710 and 1720. By 1730 he was probably fully engaged in the practice of law. He was repeatedly employed by the town in suits, and was the chief conveyancer of the citizens here.

Noah Emery was a native of Kittery and came here early in the eighteenth century. When the Revolution began, he took sides as a warm patriot, and was chosen a delegate to the Provincial Congress, of which he served, also, as clerk. He held several other important offices, among them clerk of the Court of Common Pleas.

Wm. Parker was born in Portsmouth in 1731. He was a graduate of Harvard College in 1751, became a teacher, studied law, and commenced practice in Exeter in 1765. He was a well-read and able lawyer, and was appointed to important offices, among them judge of the Court of Common Pleas, which he held from 1790 to 1807. He died at the age of eighty-one.

John Pickering, an eminent lawyer, who became Chief Justice of the State, and judge of the District Court of the United States, resided in Exeter for a year or two during the Revolution.

Oliver Peabody was a native of Andover, Mass. He graduated from Harvard in 1773, studied law, and began practice in Exeter about the year 1778. He was elected to many important public offices, among them, State Senator, treasurer of the county and later of the State, sheriff, and judge of the Court of Common Pleas. An able, courteous, kindly man, he was esteemed by all who knew him. He died here, Aug. 3, 1831.

Nathaniel Parker, son of Judge Wm. Parker, was born Oct. 22, 1760, educated in the Exeter schools, studied law in his father's office, and began practice here before 1790. Many public offices were filled by him, the most important being that of Secretary of State of New Hampshire, in 1809. He died in Exeter, April 2, 1812.

George Sullivan, son of Gen. John Sullivan of Revolutionary renown, was born in Durham, Aug. 29, 1771, was educated at Phillips Exeter and at Harvard, read law in his father's office, and settled in this town in 1793 or 1794. He was elected a representative to the State Legislature in 1805, and later was appointed at two different periods Attorney General of the State, serving the second time for twenty years. In 1811 he was elected to the United States Congress for a term, and in 1814 and 1815 was a member of the State Senate. Mr. Sullivan was a very able lawyer, an eloquent orator, a fair-minded and upright man, who ranked among the first of the legal practitioners of this State. He died in Exeter, April 14, 1838.

Moses Hodgdon, of Dover, came here from a practice in that town, and resided here from about 1811 to 1813, when he returned to his native town.

Solon Stevens, was born in Charlestown, Oct. 3, 1778, graduated from Dartmouth in 1798, studied law, and after he had been admitted to the bar, came to Exeter to begin practice about the year 1801. He resided here, probably, about seven years, when he removed to Boston. His health failing, he went back to his early home, where he died at the age of thirty years.

Jeremiah Smith, was a native of Peterborough, a student at Harvard and at Queen's (Rutgers) College in New Jersey, at the latter of which he completed his collegiate course. He was wounded at the battle of Bennington in the Revolution, while serving in a company raised to oppose the advance of Burgoyne. He taught school, read law, and after he was admitted to the bar became one of the most prominent and able lawyers in this section. He served in the State Legislature for three years, and in 1790 was elected to Congress, to which office he was re-elected for three different terms. He became District Attorney of the United States in 1797, and that year came to Exeter to reside. Among the other important offices which he filled were: Judge of Probate for the County of Rockingham, judge of the U. S. Circuit Court, Chief Justice of the New Hampshire Superior Court, and Governor of New Hampshire. He was also president of the Exeter Bank, and the treasurer of the Phillips Exeter Academy. Judge Smith was an amiable man, a quick-witted, shrewd, skilful attorney, in a word "one of the ablest men and most learned lawyers that New Hampshire has produced." He died at Dover, Sept. 21, 1842.

James Thorn was born in Londonderry, Aug. 14, 1785, graduated at Dartmouth at the age of twenty, was admitted to the bar in 1808, and set up an office in Exeter shortly afterward. After residing here seven years he removed to Derry.

Joseph Tilton came to Exeter to practice in 1809, after having spent some time in practice in Wakefield and Rochester. He was a well-read lawyer, and a sound, able counsellor, and among other offices held that of member of the Legislature from Exeter, 1814-1823.

Jotham Lawrence, a descendant of one of Exeter's early residents, and a native of Epping, was educated at Phillips Exeter, studied law with George Sullivan, Esq., and after a short practice in his native town took up his residence here in 1809, residing here until his death, Nov. 6, 1863.

Stephen Peabody of Milford, who practiced here from 1811 to 1813; Jeremiah Fellowes, a native of this town, and a graduate of Bowdoin, who began practice here in 1813; Geo. Lamson, also a Bowdoin man, and both a lawyer and publisher here, before removing to New York City in 1823; and Wm. Smith, son of the Hon. Jeremiah Smith, a native of Exeter, graduate of Harvard, and a promising lawyer, who died while still a young man, in 1830, are the next lawyers on the list.

Oliver W. B. Peabody, who was the son of Judge Oliver Peabody, was a graduate of Harvard College in 1816, and of the Harvard Law School in 1822, was a skilful lawyer, an editor, scholar, professor of English Literature in Jefferson College, Louisiana, for a short time, and finally a Unitarian clergyman in Burlington, Vermont, where he died July 5, 1848, loved and respected by all who knew him.

John Sullivan, of the famous family of that name, was educated at Phillips Exeter Academy, read law with his father, was admitted to the bar about 1825, and began practice in this town. Of all the offices he held, the most important was that of Attorney General of the State, which he held for many years. He was one of New Hampshire's ablest men, faithful and upright, a true friend, a learned counsellor, an able, skilful, judicious attorney.

Another of Exeter's most promising lawyers was Samuel T. Gilman, who like so many of the young lawyers of the town died in his early prime. After graduating at Harvard with a high rank for scholarship, he taught in the academy here, studied law, and began practice in 1823. He died however, eleven years later, before he had attained the age of thirty-four years.

Samuel D. Bell, who became Chief Justice of the Superior Court, lived in Exeter five or six years. He came from Chester to accept a position as cashier of the Exeter Bank, and removed about the year 1835, to practice law elsewhere.

James Bell came here in 1831 from Gilmanton, where he had been in practice. He was a graduate of Bowdoin, and had studied law with his brother, S. D. Bell, and at a law school in Litchfield, Conn. He soon became a leading lawyer, enjoying a very large practice, and filled important offices, among them United States Senator, 1855, which he held at the time of his death, May 26, 1857.

John Kelly, came to Exeter in 1831, twenty-three years after he had been admitted to the bar. He was a native of Warner, a Dartmouth alumnus, editor of "The Concord Gazette," and "The Exeter News Letter," an original member of the New Hampshire Historical Society, and a historian, representative to the Legislature of New Hampshire, and a man who was prominent in the community.

Timothy Farrar, son of Judge Farrar, graduated from Dartmouth, practiced law in Portsmouth and Hanover, was a judge of the Court of Common Pleas for several years, and in 1836 came to Exeter to accept a position as cashier of the Exeter Bank. He removed to Boston in 1844.

Amos Tuck was born in Partsonsfield, Me., in 1810, graduated from Dartmouth in 1835, taught in the academy at Hampton, and studied law there until 1838, when he came to Exeter to complete his legal studies and practice law. For eight years he was the partner of Mr. Bell, before that gentleman removed to Gilford. He was an able lawyer and politician, served six years in the House of Representatives, was a member in 1856 of the convention in Philadelphia which founded the Republican party, was a delegate in 1860 to the Chicago Convention which nominated Abraham Lincoln for the Presidency, held many lucrative and important civil and political offices, and led a successful, active and honorable life.

Henry F. French was a native of Chester, studied law with his father and at the Harvard Law School, was admitted to practice in 1835, and came to Exeter several years later, residing here from 1841 to 1859. He was county solicitor ten years, bank examiner four years, a judge of the State Court of Common Pleas, filling all these offices with integrity and ability. In 1859, he went to Massachusetts, practiced law, was president of the Massachusetts Agricultural College, was second assistant secretary of the U. S. Treasury, retiring from active public life to reside in Concord, Mass., where he died Nov. 29, 1885.

John S. Wells, a grandnephew of Gen. John Sullivan, was born in Durham in 1803, practiced law in Guildhall, Vt., and Lancaster, N. H., held several civic offices, and came to Exeter in 1846. More offices, several of them important, in the State, came to him, and in 1855 he was appointed by the Governor a U. S. Senator to fill a vacant seat, and held the office until the succeeding March. He was regarded as a very successful lawyer, a keen business man, and an attorney of great persuasive powers. He died in Exeter, Aug. 1, 1860.

Wm. W. Stickney, a native of Enfield, and a graduate of Dartmouth in 1823, was admitted to the bar in 1826, and came to Exeter from Newmarket in 1847. He held many offices, among them that of U. S. Attorney for the district of New Hampshire. He was a diligent, careful man, of solid, substantial qualities, a man of integrity and worth. His death occurred March 19, 1888, at the age of eighty-six years.

Alva Wood of Georgetown, Mass., who opened an office here about 1847, Geo. C. Peavey, an invalid, but a lawyer who enjoyed an extensive practice, and a man of large business interests, who died at Strafford May 5, 1876, Joseph Bell, who resided here a short time before beginning a successful career in Haverhill, Thomas Rice, who was here perhaps in 1817, Abram Smith, 1829, Gilman Marston of military fame, whose services in the Civil War have made the nation his debtor and who came in 1840, David A. Gregg, who came here in 1842, following a practice in Derry, M. F. Eldridge, who had an office here two or three years between 1840-1850, and E. Frank Tucke, a native of Kensigton and a graduate of Dartmouth in 1843, who died in 1857, are the next names on the record. J. H. Shapley of Portsmouth, who held several offices here, Nathaniel Gordon, an Exeter boy, and a Dartmouth graduate in 1842, who practised law for several years after 1850, Horace C. Bacon, who was a partner of John S. Wells, Esq., from about 1852 to 1856, going later to Epping, and afterwards to Lawrence, Mass., and Nathaniel G. Perry, a native of this town and a Harvard man, who died in his youth, come next on the list. Charles H. Bell, who came here from Somersworth in 1854, and practised law fourteen years, serving also as county solicitor for ten years, John W. Clark, 1857-1868, later of Washington, D. C., Moses N. Collins, who rendered distinguished service in and lost his life in the Civil War, Samuel H. Stevens, who resided here a few years, later removing to Concord, S. M. Wilcox, later of Washington, D. C., F. O. French, partner of Amos Tuck, Esq., later a banker in Boston and New York, Benj. F. Ayer, of Chicago, who remained only a short time during the Civil War, H. D. Batchelder, here before 1860, afterwards of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., John J. Bell, who came from Maine, and began practice here about 1865, Andrew Wiggin, 1865—, removed to Boston, Joseph F. Wiggin, a native of Exeter, in practice during the decade 1860-1870, holding the office of judge of probate for a few years, S. D. Wingate, admitted an attorney in 1867, Chas. U. Bell, who began practice here about 1868, going about five years later to Lawrence, Mass., B. M. Fernald, afterwards of Boston, and R. Webster Locke, are the next lawyers on the records.

* Arthur O. Fuller (Harvard, Harvard Law, and a German University), in office of Wiggin and Fernald, Boston, came here as New Hampshire partner of Joseph F. Wiggin, Esq., 28 State street, Boston, about the year 1881, and is in practice at this time.

* Henry A. Shute, justice of the police court, is a native of Exeter, and a graduate of Harvard. He was admitted to the bar in 1882, and has continued the practice of his profession since that time. In addition to his law practice Mr. Shute has published several books which have given him a reputation as an author, among them, "The Diary of a Real Boy" and the "Sequel," "Letters to Beany," "Love Letters of Plupy Shute," "Plupy in Peace and War," "Real Boys," and "A Few Neighbors," besides numerous contributions to the magazines.

Edward W. Ford, a native of this town, studied law in the office of Fred S. Hatch of Exeter, and about the year 1888 was admitted to the bar. He practised a short time in Rochester, and later removed to Massachusetts.

* Perley Gardner, a Harvard graduate, studied law in the office of Attorney-General Eastman, was admitted to the bar in 1901, and since that time has been a partner in the firm of Eastman, Scammon and Gardner.

* John Scammon, a native of Stratham, studied law in Gen. Eastman's office, and was admitted to the bar in 1898, afterwards becoming a partner in the well-known firm. He was elected to the New Hampshire Legislature a few years ago, and in 1907 was made Speaker of the House.

Ernest G. Templeton, a native of this town, prepared for the legal profession at Harvard and the Harvard Law School, and was admitted to the bar in 1906. He is now practising in the office of Leslie P. Snow, Esq., of Rochester.

* Edwin G. Eastman, a graduate of Dartmouth, studied in the office of Judge Carpenter, later Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, and came to Exeter about 1876, as a partner of General Gilman Marston. For several terms he has been Attorney-General of New Hampshire. General Eastman is came to Exeter in 1875, and has practised here since that time. He has been clerk of courts for about fourteen years.

* John E. Young, justice of the New Hampshire Supreme Court, is a native of Stratham, and a graduate of Dartmouth. He studied law in the offices of Generals Marston and Eastman, was admitted to the bar in 1890. He became a justice of the Superior Court in April, 1901, and a justice of the Supreme Court in January, 1904.

Louis G. Hoyt, a Dartmouth alumnus, studied law in the office of Judge Stickney, and was admitted to the bar about 1876 or 1877. Later he went to Kingston.

Fred S. Hatch practised here a few years, and afterward went to Kansas.

J. Warren Towle (Harvard and Harvard Law School) came to Exeter after having been in Portsmouth and Epping, and died there about the year 1902.

still practising law here as one of the firm of Eastman, Scammon and Gardner.

Wm. P. Chadwick, practised a short time in Lawrence, and after came to this town, where he practised until his death.

Albert C. Buzzell (Harvard) practised for a time in Boston; came here about 1880, and practised for several years.

* Thomas Leavitt, a graduate of Bowdoin, came to Exeter from Hampton and has practised here for perhaps forty years. He was judge of probate for the County of Rockingham during a period of twenty-six years. He retired from that office at the age limit, but is still engaged in the practice of law.

PHYSICIANS.

The first physician in Exeter was probably Dr. Thomas Deane, who was born in Boston, Nov. 28, 1694, and came to this town while still a young man. In 1718, he married Deborah, daughter of the Rev. John Clark, and began the practice of medicine shortly after, residing here until his death in 1768.

Dr. Josiah Gilman, was born in Exeter Jan. 25, 1710, married Abigal, daughter of Capt. Eliphalet Coffin, in 1731, and practised here for perhaps half a century. He died Jan. 1, 1793.

Dudley Odlin, son of the Rev. John Odlin of Exeter, was born Sept. 22, 1711, practised medicine in this town, and died at the age of thirty-six years.

Robert Gilman, son of Col. John and brother of Brigadier Peter Gilman, was born June 2, 1710. He served as a surgeon in the expedition against Louisburg in 1745, in which he was wounded in the leg by a piece of shell and on account of which he received an allowance from the Assembly of the province.

Dr. Eliphalet Hale, was the next physician, probably, to practice here. He was a native of Newbury, Mass., and began practice here before 1750.

Dr. John Giddinge, a native of this town, was both a physician and merchant. He was a leading man in the town, held several offices, and commanded a company of the soldiers who marched to the support of the party of General Sullivan and Langdon, in the raid upon Fort William and Mary in Portsmouth harbor, in December, 1774. His death occurred about the year 1785.

Dr. John Odlin, who was born in Exeter Sept. 4, 1732, and practised here for more than twenty years, before going to Concord; Nathaniel Gilman, also a native of Exeter, born about 1740, who practised medicine here before the Revolution; Caleb G. Adams, born here Jan. 8, 1752, and practised in this town, appointed a surgeon in the Revolution, and who died probably in 1783, and John Lamson, another son of Exeter, who served as surgeon during the Revolution, and practised here afterward until his death, come next on the list of Exeter's physicians.

Dr. Joseph Tilton, a native of Hampton Falls, Sept. 26, 1744, received his early education in the town schools, later studied medicine, married the daughter of John Shackford of Portsmouth, and settled in Exeter in 1767. He too served as a surgeon in the Revolutionary War, and later resided here very many years. He died in January, 1838.

Dr. Samuel Tenney was born in Byfield, Mass., Nov. 27, 1748, was educated at Dummer Academy, and later graduated at Harvard College in 1772. He studied medicine, served as a surgeon during the war, in which he rendered distinguished service, returned to Exeter, was appointed to several offices, and served as a member of Congress for three terms. He died in 1816.

Dr. Nathaniel Peabody, a native of Topsfield, Mass., derived his medical knowledge from his father, who was an eminent physician, practised many years, served as an officer in the War for Independence, served in the Legislature, and was appointed to high military offices. He was one of the chief founders of the New Hampshire Medical Society, and received the honorary degree of M. A. from Dartmouth College. He was committed to jail in Exeter for debt and resided here for twenty years. Though restricted to certain bounds, he was able to practise his profession to some extent, and did so. He was a stanch patriot, a brave soldier, an able man in many ways, and it is unfortunate that his financial embarrassments reflect a blot upon his otherwise worthy career. He died in Exeter, June 27, 1823.

Wm. Parker, Jr., a surgeon in the war, came to resume his practice in Exeter, when his military service ended, and continued in practice for several years. He died about 1796.

Nathan North practised medicine in Exeter during a period of twenty years. He removed from this town in 1815.

Dr. William Perry, son of Nathan Perry of Norton, Mass., was born Dec. 20, 1788. He prepared for college in part at an academy, spent his freshman year in Union College, and later entered Harvard, taking his degree there in 1811. He studied medicine in Plymouth and Boston, and opened an office in Exeter in 1814. His practice became extensive, extending throughout the whole county, and even beyond it at times, and he became the principal surgeon and physician in this section, continuing to be regarded as such for more than half a century. His life, which he closed at the age of ninety-six, was long and useful. He was much loved and respected, and was mourned as an upright, able, lovable man of the greatest integrity and worth.

Dr. David W. Gorham, was born in Canandaigua, N. Y., in the year 1800, was educated at Phillips Exeter, and at Harvard, from which he graduated in 1821. He established himself in the practice of medicine in Exeter, and remained in this town until his death in 1873. His son, Wm. H. Gorham, also practised here.

Dr. Samuel B. Swett, a native of Boston, obtained his medical education in New York and Paris, and came to Exeter about the year 1840. For twenty years, he enjoyed an extensive practice in this town and vicinity, removing at the end of that time to Jamaica Plain, Mass.

* Dr. Wm. G. Perry, a son of Dr. Wm. Perry, graduated at Dartmouth in 1842, completed his medical course at Columbia, studied a year in France, and came to Exeter about the year 1846, to begin a very long and successful practice.

Other physicians who have practised here have been: Dr. Josiah Rollins, a native of this town who practised between 1750 and 1778. Dr. Selah Gridley resided here for some years before his death in 1826. Dr. Thos. O. Folsom, an Exeter boy, received his medical degree, and died shortly afterward, in 1827. Drs. A. D. Dearborn, Thos. Flanders, and Blodgett practised here a few years about 1840. Dr. Chas. Warren, too, practised here more or less for several years. Dr. Geo. W. Gale, had a practice also. Dr. Franklin Lane practised medicine here and at the same time acted as editor of the "News Letter." He afterwards removed to Baltimore, Md.

Dr. Geo. G. Odiorne, a native of the town, commenced practice but afterwards removed to the West. Dr. Ezra Bartlett, for a number of years in practice in this town, went to Taunton, Mass. Dr. E. P. Cummings came here a little before the Civil War, was in the naval service later, and died in Newburyport, Mass. Dr. Samuel Perham and Dr. Albert Carroll practised here for some years. Dr. Chas. C. Odlin, a native of Exeter, practised here with success for several years, and is now located in Melrose, Mass.

Dr. Joseph M. Patch, was one of the first of Exeter's medical men to practice dentistry, 1839-1849. Dr. Wm. L. Johnson later practised dentistry for about twenty years in Exeter, going from here at the end of that time to Boston. Among his successors in that profession have been Drs. M. D. Vinal and M. W. Pray, and Drs. C. H. Gerrish, J. E. S. Pray, A. T. Severance, F. A. Charles and H. Prescott, those who are in practice in town at the present time.

Other Exeter physicians are:

* Dr. William Nute, who graduated at the Bowdoin Medical School in 1881, and who has been in practice here for more than twenty years; Dr. W. B. Mack, now of Hampton; * Dr. Robert Mason, one of Exeter's oldest physicians; Dr. Edward Otis, now of Boston, Mass.; * Dr. W. B. Kenniston, who has been in practice here for a number of years; Dr. Lafayette Chesley; his daughter, * Dr. Alice M. Chesley, who practises medicine here at the present time; * Dr. Walter Tuttle, homeopathic; Drs. Barstow and Sawyer, who practised here for brief periods before removing to Massachusetts; * Dr. A. H. Varney of Newfield, who has a practice here; * Dr. H. C. Day, * Dr. B. A. S. Harwood, * Dr. J. G. W. Knowlton and * Dr. P. B. Stevens.

HISTORY OF HAMPTON.

GENERAL DESCRIPTION.

Hampton in the eastern part of Rockingham County, is a coast town, adjoining Exeter, the county seat, and is bounded on the southwest by Hampton Falls, on the northwest by Exeter, on the northeast by North Hampton, and on the south-east by the Atlantic Ocean. It is twelve miles south from Portsmouth, and forty-seven miles south-east from Concord, the capital of the State. It is located on the Eastern Division of the Boston and Maine Railroad, and is connected by an electric railroad with Exeter, Portsmouth, Hampton Falls, Amesbury, Haverhill, and intermediate and connecting points.

The surface of Hampton is comparatively level, and a large proportion of the land is salt marsh and low interval lying along the river which divides this town from Hampton Falls. Most of the land is of good quality and well adapted to mowing and tillage, and many of the inhabitants are engaged in farming. The breeding and raising of poultry, too, is a profitable pursuit of the townspeople.

The situation of Hampton is pleasant, affording from its eminences romantic views of many interesting points, among them the Isles of Shoals, and the seacoast from Cape Ann to Portsmouth. For this reason it has become a noted summer resort and in the warm season thousands of people flock to this town and its beaches, where accommodation is afforded for visitors by excellent hotels.

An abrupt eminence, Boar's Head, extends into the ocean and divides the beaches, about midway between the mouth of the river and the northeast corner of the town.

The fisheries have been prosecuted with much success, and shipbuilding was formerly carried on largely here, many years ago. The town, however, is primarily, though some manufacturing is done here, a summer resort and an agricultural community. The population in 1900 was 1209.

EARLY PROPRIETARY AND SETTLEMENT.

The land grants of the Council of Plymouth in 1622, to Sir Ferdinando Gorges and Capt. John Mason, and in 1629 to Mason alone, both included the tract called by the Indians Winnacunnet. Perhaps the earliest notice of the place is that in the records of the General Court of Massachusetts, under the date of March 3, 1636, where this order is to be found: "That there shalbe a plantacon settled at Winnacunnet & that Mr. Dumer & Mr. John Spencer shall have power to presse men to builde a house forthw'th, in some convenient place, & what money they lay out about it, shalbe repaide them againe out of the tresury, or by those that come to inhabit there."

In accordance with this order a house afterward called the "Bound House" was built for the purpose of securing Winna-cunnet to Massachusetts, though in fairness to the construction of its charter the place was apparently outside of the jurisdiction of Massachusetts.

About two years after the settlement of the town of Newbury had been begun near the Parker river, the inhabitants, for some reason "haveing been moved to leave their plantation," received from the General Court, Nov. 2, 1637, a conditional grant of Winnacunnet, and all who should "remove w'thin one yeare" were to "have three years imunity" from the first day of March, 1638.

About this time, April 3, 1638, Rev. John Wheelwright bought of the Indians a tract of land around Squamscott Falls, and the purchase included Winnacunnet.

Early in that year (1638) two persons at least were residing at Winnacunnet, Nicholas Eastman and a Mr. Godfrey. They remained but a very short time. Where Godfrey went to is not certain; but Eastman was soon after in Rhode Island, where in 1672 and 1673 he was the Governor.

In the autumn of 1638, no permanent settlement having been made at Winnacunnet, and the time allowed to the inhabitants of Newbury for a removal to this place having nearly expired, a petition signed by Stephen Bachiler and seven others was presented to the General Court requesting permission to settle here. Their petition was granted, and in October of that year, in all probability, the settlement of what is now the town of Hampton was begun.

In the early part of the year 1639, the inhabitants were joined by a new band of settlers, with whom came Mr. Timothy Dalton, who was soon associated with Mr. Bachiler in the work of the ministry. Before the year closed the population of the settlement had increased probably to about sixty families. At a town meeting June 30, 1640, grants of land were made to nearly sixty persons.

The General Court enacted, May 22, 1639, that "Winnacunnet is alowed to bee a towne," etc., and this order may be considered as the incorporation of the town. During the next fall session of the General Court, the Indian name Winnacunnet was changed to that which the town has had ever since, "Winnacunnet shalbee called Hampton."

Hampton was now on the way to growth and prosperity. The little band of pioneers had taken the first steps toward the establishment of new homes in the wilderness, and the first months of suffering and toil had been safely passed.

December 24, 1639, the town granted to the following persons the number of acres denoted by the figures:

Mr. Steven Bachiler, 300 (besides his house lot); Mr. Timothy Dalton, 300; Mr. Christopher Hussey, 250; Robert Swaine, 100; John Cross, 250; Wm. Eastow, 100; John Moulton, 250; Thos. Moulton, 80; William Palmer, 100; Rob't Saunderson, 80; Philemon Dalton, 100; Thos. Jones, 100; Wm. Wakefield, 150; James Davis, 80; Abraham Perkins, 80, (granted Jan. 14, 1640).

In June, 1640, grants were made to others as follows: Henry Ambrose (granted in October), Francis Asten, John Brabrook, John Brown, Henry Bright, Widow Bristow, Ambrose Carpenter, Richard Carre, Aquila Chase, Thomas Chase, Arthur Clarke, William Cole, Moses Coxe, Timothy Dalton, Jr., James Davis, Jr., ——— Dow, (if he come), John Eldred, Wm. English, Wm. Fifield, Giles Fuller, Wm. Fuller, Samuel Greenfield, Daniel Hewirck, Barnabas Horton, Wm. Howard, John Huggins, Widow Mary Hussey, Edmund Johnson, Thos. King, Richard Knight, John Legat, Wm. Marston, Robert Marston, Daniel Morse, Henry Moulton, Jeffery Mingay, Robert Page, ——— Palmer, Widow Judith Parker, Francis Peabody, John Philbrick, Walter Roper (perhaps at this time), John Sanborn, Stephen Sanborn, William Sanborn, William Sargent, John Saunders, Robert Saunderson, Robert Sawyer, Thos. Sleeper, Thos. Smith, Anthony Taylor, Robert Tuck, 100 acres, Francis Wainwright, John Ward, (if he come), Thos. Ward, John Wedgwood.

For further notice of early settlers see the History of Exeter, many of the earlier settlers of this town having been residents there prior to their settlement here.

MILITARY ACCOUNT.

REVOLUTIONARY WAR.

At the time of the outbreak of the great war for the independence of the colonies, Hampton, nearly one and a half centuries old, had been a flourishing community, and took an active and honorable part in the seven years of conflict.

The soldiers who went to Portsmouth, October, 1775, from Hampton numbered thirteen men, who served only a few days.

Corp. Joshua Towle of that number served also three months at Peekskill. In 1775, Jonathan Moulton was appointed colonel of the troops guarding the seacoast, and in Col. Wingate's regiment there were Hampton officers: Capt. Henry Elkins and Lieuts. Thos. Leavitt and Jas. Perkins.

In July, 1776, the following men went to Ticonderoga: Capt. Samuel Nay, David Moulton, John Moulton, Samuel Lamprey (5 mos.), John M. Moulton, John Murphy, Josiah Moulton, 3d, Samuel Marston, Micajah Morrel, Junr., Simon Philbrick, Edmund Philbrick, Jonathan Palmer, Zaccheus Brown, John Drake, Junr., James Hobbs. In an account of the payment of these soldiers there are also the names of Paul Long, Caesar Small and Bradbury Green. Jonathan Palmer died at Ticonderoga in 1776.

Additional at Ticonderoga: Capt. John Moulton, "Coll" Toppan, Daniel and Reuben Lamprey, John Shaw, Simon Sanborn.

At Peekskill: Sergt. John Drake, A. P. Towle, Jas. Leavitt.

September 13, 1776, Lt. Col. Abraham Drake of Col. Moulton's regiment was appointed to a separate command. In Col. Drake's regiment Nath'l Batchelder was adjutant, and Thos. Leavitt quartermaster.

September 25, 1776, Capt. Nathan Brown and Ensign Benj. Batchelder were officers in Col. Long's regiment, stationed at Newcastle, and in November, 1777, marched under orders, to Ticonderoga. Benj. Tuck died in the army, Oct. 20, 1776.

Of the 3d N. H. Regt., for service in New York, eight were from Hampton: Lieut. Josiah Dearborn, Sergt. Simon

Dearborn, Sergt. Jonathan Leavitt, Fifer Josiah Moulton, Samuel Drake, John Marston, Thos. Woodman, John Sanborn.

May 6, 1777, Nathaniel Leavitt of Hampton was appointed an ensign in Capt. Weare's company.

June, 1777, Simeon Marston was a captain and Jonathan Leavitt an ensign in Col. Senter's battalion for the defense of Rhode Island. Capt. Marston and Lieut. Leavitt were in Col. Peabody's regiment in the summer of 1778.

The following men served in Capt. Moses Leavitt's company from Sept. 8 to Dec. 16, 1777: Jeremiah Batchelder, 2d lieut., Daniel Philbrick, John Taylor, Jonathan Towle.

The following Hampton men went as volunteers to Saratoga with Col. Moulton, October, 1777: Adj. Josiah Moulton, Jr., Capt. John Dearborn, Lieut. John Taylor, Clerk Josiah Lane, Sergt. Moses Elkins, Corp. Abner Page, Corp. Joshua Towle, Corp. Nathan Brown, Jonathan Philbrick, Batchelder Brown, Abner Sanborn, Jona. Marston, Samuel Marston, Jabez Towle, Benj. Page, Samuel Drake, Jacob Palmer, Jacob Moulton, Noah Lane, J. M. Moulton, Jabez James, Joseph Nay, Josiah Mason, James Lane, Jonathan Godfree, Jethro Blake, Jereh. Ballard.

At Cambridge were the following: Capt. John Moulton, Josiah Mason, N. S. Moulton, Theodore Brown, David Moulton, Jeremiah Tuck, James Hobbs, James Tuck, Simon Philbrick, Jabez Towle, Zaccheus Brown, Jonathan Marston, Simon Moulton, Capt. Henry Elkins.

Other Hampton men, or men serving for Hampton, were Amos Brown, John Taylor, John Alman, Daniel Taylor of Exeter, Jas. Kelley of Kingston, Dole Pearson of Kingston, Jeremiah Rollings, John Jack, Jonathan Eaton of Exeter, John Russell of Exeter, Simon Batchelder, Tristram Godfrey, William Moulton, John Lane, Wm. Moulton, James Allard, Jona. Eaton, Benj. Dockram, Chas. Branscomb, John Mann, Jos. French, Sam'l George, Moses Morrill, John Page, John Russell, Nath'l Smart, Elisha Towle, Simon Towle, Thos. More, Isaac Godfrey, Levi Frances, Elisha Towle, Simon Towle, Caleb Kimball, Amos Garland, Thos. Churchill, Zadock Sanborn, Wm. Batchelder, Josiah Dearborn, Jr., Simon Dow, Jr., Isaac Godfrey, John Spring. John Lane was drafted.

Hampton took but little part in the War of 1812, and the War with Mexico, but in 1861, when the secession of the Southern States and the attack on Fort Sumpter brought on the great struggle of the War of the Rebellion, like the other towns throughout this section of the North, this town made immediate preparations to do her part in the conflict which was to follow, and speedily raised quotas of men and large sums of money to aid in the suppression of the Rebellion, and the preservation of the American Union.

The men she sent, like their forefathers in the Revolution, were sturdy patriots, loyal to their country and to her institutions, not afraid of war and bloodshed, nor if it were necessary to sacrifice their lives that the great cause of Freedom and Union might be won. It is nearly half a century since they marched away to the Southland, many of them never to return, and the people of to-day, citizens of a reunited country, can but little realize what sacrifice they made, and what toil and suffering they endured. But as they see the depleted ranks of the surviving soldiers melting away with the years, and realizing as they do that all which they possess they owe to them because they saved the nation, are proud to honor and revere the soldiers who remain, and their comrades who are sleeping in the quiet of the grave, waiting the bugle note that will summon all to the last great call of the roll.

CHURCH HISTORY.

FIRST CHURCH.

The Interwoven Pastorates—Rev. Stephen Bachiler, 1638-1641; Rev. Timothy Dalton, 1639-1661; Rev. John Wheelwright, 1647-1656; Rev. Seaborn Cotton, 1657-1686.

The first settlers of Hampton were of a strong religious character, and they brought with them to their new homes here a strong religious spirit which early manifested itself in steps taken for the promotion of the religious and spiritual welfare of the community and organization for public worship. With them, too, they brought their pastor, Rev. Stephen Bachiler, styled the father and founder of the town.

The Rev. Mr. Bachiler was a native of England, where he was born about the year 1561. He came to Boston from his native country in 1632, and went immediately to Lynn. There he began his ministry which continued until the close of 1635, not long after which time he removed to Ipswich.

With the half dozen or more members who had come from England with him, and with whom he had left Lynn, he undertook to form a settlement at Mattakeese (Yarmouth) on Cape Cod. In 1638 the company was at Newbury, and in the fall of that year settled at Winnacunnet (Hampton). Tradition has it that a meeting-house was built by those who formed the settlement, as soon as they had constructed log houses for dwellings. It was built probably of logs and erected on the Green—near where the Academy afterwards stood, and the site of several meeting-houses built successively at later periods.

In the spring of 1639, "Teacher" Timothy Dalton was associated with the Rev. Mr. Bachiler in the ministry, the age of the pastor being at that time very great.

After Mr. Bachiler's troubles on account of charges made against him (not proven), and the burning of his residence, he removed to Strawberry Bank (Portsmouth), where he lived from 1647 to 1650, and probably for some time later. He afterwards returned to England, where in the village of Hackney, two miles from London, he died in 1660, in the one hundredth year of his age.

Rev. Timothy Dalton, second pastor of the church, was a native of England, and a graduate of Cambridge in 1613. He came to New England about 1637. Mr. Dalton at the time of his settlement here was more than sixty years old. His ministry continued until his death, Dec. 28, 1661.

The second meeting-house was occupied for public worship probably about the month of June, 1650.

The Rev. John Wheelwright (a brief sketch of whose life is given in the Exeter history), the founder and first minister of Exeter, came here from his ministry in Wells, Maine, to assist Mr. Dalton, about the year 1647, and remained until 1656, when he returned to England.

Rev. Seaborn Cotton began his ministry in 1657. He was the son of Rev. John Cotton, the famous Boston minister, was born at sea, while his parents were coming to America, graduated at Harvard in 1651, and was settled at Windsor, Conn., before coming to Hampton. He remained here until his death in 1686.

The third meeting-house was begun in 1675, but it was not completed until several years later.

Rev. John Cotton was the next settled pastor, coming here in 1686, to remain until the summer of 1690. Rev. John Pike came next for a short pastorate which he closed in February, 1692, when he removed to Newbury. Rev. John Cotton returned to Hampton in 1696 for a second pastorate which continued thirteen years and four months until his death, March 27, 1710. Rev. Nathaniel Gookin came soon after Mr. Cotton's death and remained until 1734.

In 1711, the Falls church was organized, forty-nine members of the old church being dismissed for the purpose.

The fourth meeting-house erected in Hampton was first occupied as a place of worship Oct. 18, 1719.

In 1725, nine persons were dismissed from the church to form one in Kingston.

In 1726, a church was organized and a pastor settled in the town of Rye, and a considerable number of the first members were of the Hampton church.

In the last years of Mr. Gookin's ministry here, several assistants were engaged to help him in the work, among them a Mr. Gilman, who remained at least seven or eight months, and preachers, hired for three months at a time, until 1734. Mr. Solomon Page and Mr. Ward Cotton were among those who preached here, and the latter succeeded Mr. Gookin, becoming sole pastor on the latter's death. His first sermon in Hampton was delivered in July, 1731. At the time he became pastor of the church there were 253 members in full communion. About three years afterward, a church was formed in Kensington, sometimes called the "third parish in Hampton." Succeeding Mr. Cotton, the Rev. Ebenezer Thayers, 1765-1792 was pastor of the church.

Not long after Mr. Thayers' decease the Presbyterian Schism occurred, and many of the old church seceding formed a new society, of which Rev. Wm. Pidgin became pastor. He was a native of Newburyport, Mass., a graduate of Dartmouth, and was ordained Jan. 27, 1796.

Soon after the schism the Congregationalists began to hold meetings by themselves, their first preacher being the Rev. Mr. Perkins. He remained only a few weeks, and on the 17th of April, Mr. Jesse Appleton came for the first time, continuing to supply the society until his ordination which took place about ten months later. He was a native of New Ipswich, N. H., a graduate of Dartmouth, and received the degree D. D. from both Dartmouth and Harvard.

The society was incorporated with eighty-one members, Dec. 6, 1796. The Rev. Jesse Appleton was ordained Feb. 22, 1797, and in November of that year the new meeting-house was dedicated.

Both the Presbyterian and Congregational societies had now a place of worship, but parsonage property and ministerial funds were a source of contention and strife between them which continued for some time.

The Rev. Mr. Pidgin continued to preach at the Presbyterian church for a number of years, going after his dismissal here to the church in Minot, Maine.

In the meantime the Rev. Mr. Appleton was preaching at the Congregational church, but in 1807 he procured a dismissal to accept the presidency of Bowdoin College.

The churches were now without pastors, and in 1808 they united for the observance of worship, and Rev. Josiah Webster was made pastor of the church, continuing his labors with success for more than a quarter of a century. During his ministry in Hampton, 170 persons were received to the full communion of the church.

After Mr. Webster's death in 1837, the church remained without a pastor for nearly a year. In April, 1838, Rev. E. D. Eldredge, a native of Dunstable, Mass., and a graduate of Amherst, was ordained pastor. He remained until 1849. In January, 1844, a new church was dedicated.

Since Mr. Eldredge's pastorate the following ministers have been pastors of the church: Rev. Solomon P. Fay, Sept. 6, 1849-Aug. 29, 1854, removed to Dayton, Ohio; Rev. John Colby, Oct. 31, 1855-Nov. 18, 1863; Rev. Jas. B. Thornton (supply), 1 yr.; Rev. J. W. Dodge (Amherst and Andover), Oct. 19, 1865-Nov. 18, 1868, removed to Yarmouth, Mass.; Rev. Jas.

McLean, from Menasha, Wis., autumn 1869, supply for a year, installed settled pastor Dec. 15, 1870-Jan. 30, 1872; Rev. F. D. Chandler, employed nearly two years; Rev. John S. Batchelder, three years; Rev. Wm. H. Cutler, four and a half years; Rev. Walcott Fay, of Michigan, came here from Oxford, Me., ordained Feb. 20, 1884, pastor until Nov. 16, 1886, removed to Bridgewater, Mass.; Rev. John A. Ross, native of Lunenburg, N. S., who began his ministrations in July, 1887, installed June 14, 1892, remained until about four years ago, when Rev. Edgar Warren came to remain about three years, at the end of which time Rev. E. Payson Rowell, the present pastor, came.

A notable event in the history of the church was the celebration of the two hundred and fiftieth anniversary, August 19, 1888.

FREE BAPTISTS.

In the spring of 1808 when the Presbyterian and Congregational societies were united, and the Congregational church was restored to its former position as the church of Hampton, there were a few citizens who refused to be a party to the union.

They were not strong enough however to colonize until 1814, but in July of that year the dissenters held their first meeting here, Elders Jabez True and Henry Pottle conducting the services. From this time they continued to worship in a house of their own, some of the Little River people uniting with them until a church was built in that village.

In 1817, the First Baptist Society in Hampton was incorporated, and after that the society in 1819 received as pastor

Elder John Harriman. He remained a little more than three years, and about 1822 removed to Plaistow.

In October, 1834, a church of twenty-four members was organized at the house of Joshua Lane, and called the "Church of Christ Within the First Baptist Society in Hampton."

The same year, Rev. Timothy Cole became pastor. He remained until 1838, when the Rev. Elias Hutchins, a native of New Portland, Me., came to remain several years. Succeeding pastors have been: Rev. Porter S. Burbank, 1840— for five years; Rev. Wm. D. Johnson; Rev. Mr. Burbank, again, 1846— for two years; Rev. Wm. P. Merrill, 1848—; Rev. R. Ashley, 1850; Rev. Frederic Moulton, 1851; Rev. Wm. Rogers, 1853—, three years; (parsonage built in 1854); Rev. Wm. H. Waldron, one year; Rev. Wm. C. Clark, one year, (1857-8— great revival, twenty-four converts); Rev. DeWitt C. Durgin, (Waterville and Union Colleges), Sept. 8, 1858—twelve years, very prominent clergyman, Principal of Hampton Academy, President Hillsdale College, Mich.; received degree of Doctor of Divinity from Bates in 1875; lecturer. Rev. Francis H. Lyford, 1870; Rev. Geo. J. Abbott, 1873-1877, died in Oakland, Me., Nov. 3, 1883; Rev. Lot L. Harmon (Bangor Theo. Sem.), Aug., 1877—nearly four years; later of Pomona, Fla.; Rev. F. P. Wormwood, 1881; Rev. Arthur L. Morey, native of Moira, N. Y., grad. Bates, '76, and Theological School '82, came in 1882—three years; Rev. John B. Merrill, 1885-1888; removed to Epsom; (church remodeled at cost of about $3,100; revival); Rev. Willis A. Tucker, native Guilford, Me., grad. Cobb Divinity School, pastor Oct. 29, 1888-April, 1892; removed to South Windham, Me. Rev. Mr. Wiggin was the next pastor and was succeeded by the present pastor, Rev. Granville Waterman, who has been here many years.

METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH.

When Methodism was introduced in Hampton, the Congregational and a Christian society had been in existence for many years. The first Methodist sermon preached in Hampton was delivered in the old North schoolhouse by the Rev. James M. Fuller in December, 1835.

Sometime in the month of November, 1836, preaching having been held at regular intervals of time for several months, the friends of Methodism held their first "protracted meeting," at which twenty converts were made, and immediately united together in a class. The society worshiped in the small house formerly occupied by the Christian society. In May (1837) the house which had been given to the society, and repaired and fitted, was rededicated to the worship of God, and the Rev. J. M. Fuller preached the sermon.

July 4, 1837, Rev. John Brodhead was appointed to preach here, and he labored in Hampton until the following spring, when he died at his residence in South Newmarket. Rev. Wm. Padman was appointed here in 1838. Revs. S. A. Cushing and A. M. Osgood preached here the next year, and in 1840 Mr. Osgood returned for a pastorate of about a year. Rev. Abraham Folsom was appointed in 1841. Through his influence the legal society "The First Methodist Episcopal Society of Hampton" was organized, April 8, 1842. Mr. Folsom died in 1872. In 1842, Rev. Horatio N. Taplin, a native of East Corinth, Vt., came for a pastorate of two years.

Succeeding pastors have been: Rev. John F. Adams, 1844; Rev. Jas. M. Young, 1845; Rev. Chas. H. Chase, 1856; (parsonage procured at expense of about $600); Rev. Henry Nutter, two years; (new church built, cost $1500, dedicated November, 1848) Rev. A. M. Osgood; Rev. Ira A. Sweetland, 1850; Rev. Matthew Newhall, 1851-2; Rev. Jas. M. Hartwell, one year; Rev. John English, 1854—two years; Rev. John W. Johnson, 1856—two years; Rev. Jos. Hayes, 1860; Rev. F. K. Stratton, 1861-2; Rev. S. F. Whidden, 1863; Rev. E. Lewis, 1864; Rev. N. L. Chase, 1865; Rev. A. C. Coult, 1866; Rev. A. A. Cleaveland, 1867-8; Rev. G. W. Ruland, 1869-70; Rev. S. J. Robinson, 1871; Rev. Elihu Scott, 1872-4; Rev. J. H. Knott, 1875-6; Rev. J. P. Frye, 1877-8; Rev. A. B. Carter, 1879-80; Rev. J. F. Spaulding, 1881-3; Rev. H. B. Copp, 1884-6; Rev. W. C. Bartlett, 1887-9; Rev. C. M. Howard, 1890; Rev. Noble Fisk, 1891-2.

In September, 1881, the church building was removed to its present site near the centre of the town, and, largely through the indefatigable enterprise of the Rev. Mr. Spaulding, thoroughly and tastefully renovated and remodeled, and furnished with a bell, at a cost of thirty-one hundred dollars. The church was rededicated Jan. 5, 1882.

Since Mr. Fisk's pastorate the following ministers have been pastors of the church:

Revs. G. H. Clark, 1893; W. A. Prosser, 1894-5; D. W. Downs, 1896-7; John Bradford, 1898-1903, (longest pastorate); Chas. M. Tibbetts, 1904-6; J. F. Felt, 1906-; came here from Portsmouth, N. H., church, and is the present pastor.

SECOND ADVENT CHURCH.

The followers of William Miller in 1843, and the doctrine of the second coming of the Lord, found a few sympathizers here in Hampton who embraced the teachings of the new sect. They organized for worship, and held meetings. About the year 1870, new adherents to the doctrines were found here, and in November, 1871, a newly erected chapel was completed. On the 18th of January, 1877, a church was organized, and has grown in prosperity and numbers. The church was supplied with preaching by visiting preachers until May, 1905, when the Rev. James McLaughlin came as the first and present settled pastor of the church. There are about fifty members of the society at the present time.

Census Abbreviations

The population of the towns of Exeter and Hampton, N. H., has been arranged in families where that arrangement has been possible. In addition to the resident living members, the non-resident members are included. However, this does not include all the non-residents of these towns, as the non-resident appears only when such person has one or both the parents still living in town.

After the name of each non-resident person will be found the address when such address has been given to us. Non-residents are indicated by the * preceding the name.

Following the name of each family appears the address of the family when the said address is different from the name of the town.

The married lady's name is written in full with the maiden name in parenthesis; and further if a daughter, whose name appears in her parents' family of course, has married, whether a resident or a non-resident, there will be placed after her name, in parenthesis preceded by a small m the name she has taken in marriage, thus (m ———).

Following the name of the population appears the occupation. To designate these we have in many cases used the more common abbreviations and contractions, as follows: Farmer—far; carpenter—car; railroad service such as conductor, brakeman, fireman or engineer—R. R. ser: student denotes person studying in a high school or advanced institution of learning; pupil denotes a member of the lower grades of schools and includes all who have reached the age of five years; laborer—lab; physician and surgeon—phy & surg; clergyman—clerg; merchant—mer; blacksmith—blk; bookkeeper—bk kpr; mechanic—mech; machinist—mach; engineer—eng; worker—wkr; work—wk; shoe shop operative—s s op; cotton or woolen mill operative—mill op; electrician—elec; painter—ptr; paper hanger—pap hgr; carriage work—carg wk; dressmaker— dr mkr; traveling salesman or commercial traveler—sales or com trav; music teacher—mus tr; teamster—team; general work—gen wk; employ—emp; retired—ret'd; telephone operative—tel op; telegraph operator—teleg op; housekeeper—ho kpr; photographer—photog; manager—mgr; mason—mas; veterinary—vet; builder—bldr; Baptist—Bap; Free Baptist—Fr Bap; Methodist—Meth; Universalist—Univ; Unitarian—Unit; Congregational—Cong.

Post offices are abbreviated according to the needs of each Register and the abbreviations used are printed at the opening of the Census section of each Register.

This Census was taken expressly for this work during the fall and winter of 1907-8, by Messrs. Bartlett, Tebbetts, Carpenter, Hanson, and Kinney.
